J. SUTTON CLARK,

St. George, N. B.

From a Woman's Point of View

I have been reminded lately of an old saying of my mother's, that I never had such good manners as when I was sick.

Just now my neighbor, little Eleanor, has had a slight operation on her throat and nose, but it necessitated the taking of either. It was all successful, and her mother was talking in low tones with the nurse as the child came to herself and found she was not alone.

A New York miller says that women should wear hats to match the soul. To wear an Alice Blue one must be musical and poetic, enthusiastic, inconsistent, reckless. One must always be fascinating and cherish a hidden passion for bridge when the stakes are high.

A capable housewife must wear red, a domestic person with a sympathetic nature has a rose-colored soul, and must wear the most vivid pink.

Young girl said to me just the other day, "How I hate those words, 'if and but.'"

"Don't exactly know, the girl mused, 'I can tell you now I hate them than why.'"

"Was little we used to say 'we're going to have a fine time!' and now everybody says 'We shall have a pleasant time, if, or else they say 'it would be pleasant, but...'"

Many a voice has been raised to regret the passing of youthful enthusiasm, and the insistent note of worldly doubtfulness, but in this case as in many others the preachers fail to practise and another chance to spread the contagion is gone.

Remember, enthusiasm is "catching" and one undaunted person can save the situation even when it is as doleful as well, as a picnic party caught in a shower.

An expedient of a woman home dress-maker who considers the wash tub was noticed on a new plaited skirt the other day. Every plait was stitched as near the edge as it was possible to run the machine needle and not cut the edge.

The result was a finish of the skirt that was very attractive and an easy way of folding the plaits when they are ironed. Another skirt which was gored, but had a front box plait, was stitched in the same way on the edges of the box plait.

There will be no danger that the laundress will make those plaits slant in doing up the skirt.

Women who find themselves with plenty of half-worn frocks in the middle of the season are compelled, to make or to rest three fresh ones to carry them through the rest of the warm weather.

As sewing is not a pleasant task at this time of the year, there has come about a decided fashion for absolutely plain white frocks made of the sheerest material.

They are to serve in outline that few girls realize what a good effect can be gotten by adding ribbon until they see the costume of some one else.

These frocks take little time to make. One girl said she finished hers in a day beginning early in the morning.

There is little fit to them, except that one must have a good skirt and a shirtwaist pattern as a foundation.

A suit of dull red linen, with a tight jacket and a row of large white pearl buttons down the front of the skirt, brought a good many women to a standstill before the place where it was shown. It was not nearly so bizarre as it sounds.

He discussed the seat of religion asking if in man or in the Bible.

In conclusion he said that the seat of authority was in God and that conscience and the Bible are authoritative, if from God. Dr. Goodspeed's position was objected to by Rev. Professor Kierstead, who said that the former advocated a position that had been exploded.

He asked Dr. Goodspeed a number of questions and spoke at some length. He differed with Dr. Goodspeed he said on matters of philosophy. The paper was in the opinion of the ministers, a very able one. Rev. F. S. Bamford of Moncton will read at paper this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. DeBolis will speak this evening.--Times.

A Great Leader

If an election is in store for us this autumn, it is already clear that the personality of the Prime Minister will be the dominating element in determining the result. Canada cannot afford to deprive herself of the advantage of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's services, and while this consideration will naturally be set aside by those who rigidly adhere to the opposing party, nevertheless it will almost certainly be adopted by the average man, and so by a decisive majority of the people. It is not by accident that personal pre-eminence is attained in a democratic community, nor is there ever much doubt about where the priority rests. The contest for high office is, in the last analysis, pretty much like any other of human combat. The eyes of the spectator are fixed upon the leading contestants, for the all sufficient reason that the forces which are best directed are most likely to win. It is human instinct to recognize, to applaud, to reward, and to support whatever champion in any form of combat shows himself undisturbably the best, in France, the highest recent example of this was the career of Napoleon, which had carrying force enough to bring in the Empire. In England, the monuments erected in every city in honor of the Duke of Wellington bear witness that worship of the highest excellence is not confined to France. In England, also, the amazing career of Mr. Gladstone gave unmistakable proof of the passionate desire of the people in an intelligent democracy to put in its best at the head. In Germany, Bismarck was able by dint of sheer fitness to hold his place of power, despite innumerable intrigues fomented by persons of great but feeble intelligence. We in Canada would probably be edamious in pointing to Sir John Macdonald as the one great example of supreme fitness for the great place he held. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has not been as sorely tried as Sir John Macdonald was, but no one seriously questions that, allowance made for the altered circumstances, his position as first citizen is as secure as that of Sir John Macdonald ever was. Certainly in the election of 1891, and probably in the election of 1897, the party Sir John led owed its majority almost altogether to the fact that he was leading.

The country paid him the tribute of recognition; any one who has any doubt of that ought to read again the story of what happened to his Cabinet after he was called away from it. There is hardly a doubt in the mind of an ordinary man, even of one whose party affiliations are strongly Conservative, that if we are to have an election now the country will give Sir Wilfrid Laurier the same sort of a diploma. People will not be satisfied with second best so long as best is available. People would not have George Brown, who was a foeman worthy of Sir John Macdonald's steel, people would not have Edward Blake, who nevertheless stands by his magnificent talents the unbounded admiration of his follower people will not now displace Sir Wilfrid Laurier as the spokesman of the nation, to but in his stead any one of those who might possibly be mentioned as an alternative.

The position is made all the more secure for Sir Wilfrid by the fact that he is right in the midst of the undertaking by virtue of which his administration will be distinguished in the future. Sir John Macdonald's great material achievement was the construction of the Canadian Pacific. He brought in the protection tariff too, it is true, and he and his friends were given eighteen years of fair trial to show what they could do with it, but they failed to perform any wonders, and much of their work had to be undone. The steel highway across the continent remains, and will remain so with Sir Wilfrid; he has lived through twelve years of administration, has faced the thousand and one problems they have to be disposed of as they arise, has seen strong men enter his Cabinet and walk out from it, has presided over the destinies of Canada in the era of its greatest prosperity in the years when the long awaited forward impulse was left at last from end to end of the Dominion; but the work by which he will be remembered, the work that was made possible by a happy concurrence of good times and good management, is the National Transcontinental Railway, now in course of construction. Sir Wilfrid has a right to ask to be allowed to finish that work; he has the right to demand that the government be not turned over, in this critical stage of the enterprise, to those who represent one phase or another of interested opposition to that work. Let Sir Wilfrid finish his work. By the time it is done Canada may have recognized the presence of the one man of the morrow, who can stare out, in his turn, upon the work of his time.--Montreal Herald.

Leavitt-Dines

A very pretty wedding took place at the Christian Church, Back Bay, the contracting parties being Seymour Leavitt and Mabel Dines, eldest daughter of Mr. Sydney Dines, keeper of the Electric Fog Alarm, on Thursday evening, August 20th, which was the groom's birthday. Precisely at 8 o'clock, while a crowd of church listened to the strains of the wedding march, played by Violet Williamson, the bride paraded up the aisle and took their places beneath an evergreen arch and floral bell. The church was beautifully decorated, the color scheme being pink and white. The bride looked charming in a dress of cream and lace and wore a bridal veil festooned with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of pink and white sweet peas. The bridesmaid, Miss Ella Leavitt, sister of the groom, was gowned in white. The groom was supported by Owen Hinds. The flower girl Clara Dines, sister of the bride, was dressed in pink and white and carried a basket of flowers. The ushers were, Eben Leavitt Russell Hooper, Frank Leavitt and Chester Johnson. The groom's present to the bride was a gold brooch and to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet.
