The clever boxer who helped to make the Minnesota capital famous, and his skill has won for him the name of "The Phantom," although there is nothing ghost-like in his solid blows.

CANADIAN LOST THE CANOE RACE

The racing on Gravesend Bay today was a run, a reach and a beat for five miles in each race, morning and afternoon. The wind was fairly steady, about ten miles an hour from the northwest. In the morning's race Friede's margin was five minutes. In the afternoon he covered the course in the elapsed time of 2 hours, 4 minutes, 46 seconds, finishing nearly seven minutes and a half ahead of Britton.
