

Coming to Hudson Bay one cannot but be struck by the opportunity for obtaining great quantities of oil from the numerous "white whales" to be seen at almost any hour frolicking in the shallow water of Nelson and Churchill harbours. I counted a hundred of these in less than an hour which exposed themselves near our tug as we steamed up the Nelson roadway on the morning of August 31. Seals are fairly plentiful, polar bear reported scarce, white foxes numerous and caribou still plentiful though being badly harassed by wolves. An Arctic salmon, found about Churchill is a fish of more than ordinary delicacy.

The northern Laurentian portions of the Prairie Provinces are full of promise and their natural resources are worthy of careful administration and judicious protection.
