

PARENTS Make Your Home Your Children's University !

Education, like charity, begins at home. What folly to let the school supply all and the only educational influences ! In the evenings, when children and parents are together companionably many questions of interest arise, and the child must ask the parent for information. Often the father and mother are speechless, or if they know, how halting and imperfect their explanations, and consequent vagueness of the child's information on facts of history and biography, questions in science, in literature, or art.

The child could find an answer written by an expert on every branch of knowledge if there were
