How can we build a new breed of men without we start with the babies? It is impossible to improve our race unless we nourish our infants that they may develop both physically and mentally.

The dairy cow is at the foundation of every industry. She is a most wonderful laboratory. She fills her stomach hopper with grain, grass and silage, then she lies down and by chewing her cud, converts this raw material into the most perfect food in the world.

Doctor McCallom, of Johns Hopkins University, tells us that the "water soluble A" and the "fat sol-
