Obituary

MRS. B. J. BATES.
On Thursday, Nov. 14th, at 12.30 p.m., the soul of Mrs. Bates passed into eternity. Her death came as a shock to her friends, as she had long been on the path to recovery. The death of Mrs. Bates was one of the saddest events that has been known to occur in the little town of Aquathuna, because on dying she left besides her husband nine little souls to fight their way through the wicked world. Mrs. Bates' hometown was Port aux Forts. She was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hynes, a good and ancient couple who are indeed worthy of having such a daughter as Mrs. Bates proved herself to be. From her birth in 1882 to her death she lived an irreproachable life. She appeared to all a pure and gentle woman, ever willing to give help to those who called on her. Never in her life did she refuse to join in anything that was for the welfare of the church. If ever there was one of God's creatures who fulfilled their mission in life it was this woman. After receiving the Sacrament of Matrimony she appeared to all to live for her husband and children, and indeed they show her training. Mrs. Bates was a true example of all that a good mother should be. It seems hard that God should have taken her at the time she was needed most. But as God's will is the better way we must live to His Holy will.

The burial of the deceased took place on Saturday morning at 8.30 at the Church of Our Lady of Mercy, Port au Port. Requiem High Mass was celebrated for the departed soul, after which the Burial Service was sung. The pall bearers were: J. J. Conza, N. Abbott, M. Abbott, R. Moore, P. Butler and G. McDonald.

To Dr. McDonald, family Doctor, great thanks is given for his untiring attention to Mrs. Bates during her illness. He used all his skill to restore the deceased to health, but it seems that God had ordained otherwise. The many friends of Mr. Bates extend their heartfelt sympathy to him and his children.

A VISITOR TO AQUATHUNA.

Mem-O-Rea a Sensation

MIND READER'S AMAZING REVELATIONS TOPIC OF TOWN.

Everywhere yesterday, the principal topic of conversation was the revelations of Mem-O-Rea, who is now filling a successful engagement at the Majestic Theatre, where his amazing readings have caused no end of comment. Mr. Gladstone, for that is his name, without aid of mechanical device or human confederates, reveals secrets of his audience individually. Every night for over an hour, he answers question after question, and incidentally gives sage advice. In some cases, he told questionnaires the names of relatives, where they were living and all about them, and to others, he told where lost articles could be recovered. To-night, Professor Mem-O-Rea and Miss Rita Johnson, the celebrated dancer, will give two performances. Everywhere that Mem-O-Rea has performed, startling incidents, (which previously had been deepest secrets), came to light and very often he helped his clients in the recovery of lost articles, the correctness of wills and other matters of importance which would otherwise have been hidden for all time. It is safe to assert that those who have already come in contact with him for readings in St. John's, are greatly impressed and believe his claim that in his particular profession, nothing is impossible for him to relate.

The feature picture to-night is "Love's Bargain," starring Marjorie Daw. It is one of the classiest pictures imported by the Majestic Management for sometime. Marjorie Daw will be remembered by many as Mary Josephine, the lovable heroine of James Oliver Curwood's story "The River's End."

In order to give full scope to Professor Mem-O-Rea to-night and during his engagement, only one show will be staged nightly, commencing at 8 o'clock, when the feature picture will be the first item.

Very many complimentary references have been made to the excellence of the pianist, Mr. Al Pittman. This young local artist deserves all the good things that are said of him, and he is assured of a successful engagement.

Lovers of film are particularly reminded of the many big pictures that are coming, among which is "North of 36," a picture bigger even than the "Covered Wagon."

Thirty-One Ships Burned

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Stripped of their internal equipment and bound into a massive junk heap, thirty-one remnants of the mammoth wartime fleet of wooden ships vanished in the flames of a salvager's torch early today on the Potomac River.

Having long outgrown their usefulness, some never were given a sailing chance, the ships once comprised a proud unit of a gigantic emergency construction project costing hundreds of millions of dollars were taken to Sandy Point on the Maryland side of the river, covered with a wire netting shroud and burned to the water's edge.

The week-end heavy voting did not change the positions of any of the first five candidates. Mrs. M. V. Kinsella retains her lead, Miss Stella Crane remains in second place, Miss Marion Moore holds third position over Miss Dot Stick who has a comfortable lead over Miss Dorothy Ebsary and Miss Belle Dunn, who are her closest rivals. Miss Lulu Crossman entered the contest in earnest and secured 1,100 votes immediately after her entry. Great reversals and heavy voting is expected to-day and to-morrow and many surprises are looked for by readers of the Telegram.

Funeral of Late Capt. Stewart Winsor

Big Dramatic Role for Colleen Moore

STAR SCORES GREAT SUCCESS IN "SO BIG," FROM EDNA FERBER NOVEL.

"Big. Bigger. So-o Big!" That is how Colleen Moore, with a flourish of her arms, describes her ambitions for the future of her baby son in "So Big," her new First National picture, at the Star Theatre.

Edna Ferber, who wrote the novel, has drawn a vivid world picture of the dream every mother builds about her son, and Miss Moore has given it an amazingly real visualization.

The story takes Colleen out of her erstwhile flapper characterizations, which won her fame in "Flaming Youth," "The Perfect Flapper" and others. It shows her as the wife of a poor truck farmer near Chicago a generation ago, wrestling on her hands and knees with the weeds in a cabbage patch.

It is a surprising role for the young star and grows more surprising as, with the passage of years, she is seen slowly transforming into a middle-aged woman of poverty. Nothing could be more remote from the gay and giddy flapper of yore.

But the climactic surprise comes with the emotional heights to which the actress rises in the finale of her difficult role.

The baby has grown to manhood and stands at the portals of fame as an architect. It is then a designing woman enters his life and threatens him with disgrace.

The mother sees her one life aim, to which she has devoted years of slavery, imperilled, and she rushes to the rescue of her son. Confronting the woman and her husband, she battles them for her great ideal and finally wins back to the pathway of her ambitions the baby she wants to become "so-o-o big."

Miss Moore has done nothing like this before, and it is doubtful if any other actress has ever portrayed a role as dramatic and as compelling.

Professor W. Seeley THE SUPER MAN.

I can and will perform supernatural feats of physical endurance. My next performance in St. John's will be about the first of December, 1925.

One of the big attractions will be: I will lay my bare back on a torture bed of 1,000 nail points, then will have a big rock put on my chest, weight about 500 pounds, then the rock will be broken by a 20 lb. sledge hammer by the hardest blitter in the city, while the nail points will try to pierce the bare back. As far as I know this same performance has never been performed, in any part of the world, with a rock the weight of the one I will use.

This alone is something you all should see. Don't be afraid, I will not get hurt; this act will take place about 9 o'clock; some of my pupils will also show you some fine looking muscles and how to send up iron and tear cards. If there are any men of any weight who would like to box professionally 6 or 10, 3 minute rounds I would like to hear from you; I will be in my office Saturday and Monday, Nov. 14 and 15. We are ready to enroll all the men, women and children that are interested in improving their physical health. If I did not have body and strength superior to yours, I could not and would not try to teach you, and I hope that you will not feel sore at me for telling you the truth. Just come in my office and let me build up that wear, little, and big body of yours. We instruct personally in classes and by mail to all parts of the country.

In the Supreme of Newfoundland

Between Newfoundland Trust Corporation, Ltd. and The Reid Newfoundland Company, Ltd. (Mines & Power) Limited and Paper Co. Ltd., Defendant.

Under the arrangement December, 1919, and in the Reid Company, through its Vice-President, and in and closely with the Trust, and Mr. MacDonald were given their exclusive services. Further, the Reid had secured the existence of an organization through which he was not prepared to make a general agreement and business meeting in London could be transacted. The Trust did later become the Reid activities in to be referred to by them as "the Trust."

This arrangement made reference in the nature of that had previously existed between the parties; it gave stability to the Reid Company's position with the Trust. The Reid Company retained its freedom of action with the Trust, and the Trust retained its freedom of action with the Reid Company. The Reid Company was to co-operate with the Trust and the Reid Company was to sell them to others with the intervention of the Trust. No special agreement of intervention of the Trust was made between them or any binding upon the sale of any of the Reid Company's assets. The proposals made by the Reid Company on behalf of the Trust on November 19, 1919, seem to have been rejected by this agreement. The proposals were not really of the Reid Company, but of the proposer to sell, but to sell some of the property of the Reid Company, and to negotiate with others when the parties do so. It is not material whether these proposals were made upon by the Trust or not.
