DIRECT LEGISLATION.

Another daily paper, the Boston Traveller, has come out for direct legislation. In the course of an editorial advocating the system it says:

"To-day if a number of people petition the Legislature for the passage of a certain law the matter is referred to a committee, and it rests entirely with that body whether to report favorably or unfavorably to the Legislature.

"If the measure asked for is of such a nature as to affect the special privileges of private corporations, agents in the employ of the corporations interested at once begin to practice their arts upon the members of the committee. This has been carried so far that an instance can be cited in which the attorney of one large and powerful contents." far that an instance can be cited in which the attorney of one large and powerful corporation in this State wrote the report for the committee, submitted it to managers of said corporation for their approval and then placed it in the hands of the committee, and that body turned it into the Legislature at their report. It is needless to add that it gave the petitioners leave to withdraw.
"If the bill is exported favorably upon by the committee, it must then run the gauntlet of corporation influence in both branches; and if a bill is passed it is usually in such an emasculated form as to be of but "This system would instantly do away "This system would instantly do away with lobbying and bribery in our legislatures, for the vote in that body would count for nothing when the settlement of the question rested with the whole people, as adopted. It would also safeguard the rights of the people in another way no act of the Legislature could become a law until approved by the people."
