LOCAL MARKET.

London, Monday, Nov. 2. Despite the fact that there were a large mber of loads of hay offered last week, it did not prevent a keen demand for the small number of loads that were offered today; prices were strong, at $12 per ton

A load of straw sold at $7 per ton; straw is very scarce at present. The buyers were disappointed at the mall number of loads of oats that were ffered: prices were firm, at $1 18 to $1 20

A good demand for oats, hay, straw, butter and eggs may be expected at tonorrow's market.

KAISER DO IT?

Chicago, III., Oct. 31.—Butter-Steady; Europe Seeks a Hidden Motive for That Calculated Indiscretion.

London, Nov. 1.-Europe has not yet recovered from the universal amazement caused by the Kaiser interview. The diplomatic world, at first 8.93c; March, 8.88c; May, 8.86c; July, 8.81c; dumbfounded by "its calculated indiscretton," sought for hidden and sinister motives on the part of the illustrious spokesman. Was it designed to breed dissension in the new triple entente? Why was it issued at the present moment of a delicate and dangerous crisis? These and similar questions, amid the general consternation, gave expression to the natural suspicions in all the European chancellories.

I have no hesitation in affirming that no deep design lies behind Wil-H. C. BI CHER, 432 Richmond tiam's extraordinary utterance. It is just what it purports to be-an impulsive expression of his sincere feelings at the particular moment when he spoke. This was no isolated outburst. It was thoroughly characteristic of the man. TEXT FOR A SERMON

Rev. J. W. Baird's Subject in Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church.

"Costly Things" was the theme of Mr. Baird's sermon on Sunday evening, based upon II. Sam., xxiii., 15. He spoke of the commercial spirit of our age, which judges men too often as well as things from the standpoint of dollars and cents. But the best things cannot be bought with money, but come to us at the cost of the sacrifices and sufferings of others. Among the costly things suggested by the text, he placed life itself, costly even from the human standpoint.

Our civil and religious liberties, our opportunities for freedom and happiness-centuries ago liberty of thought and freedom of speech were unknown To purchase these, thousands of bat tles have been fought, in which multitudes of lives have been sacrificed Our ballot boxes, right of self-government and freedom to worship God.

have cost bitter struggles, not only in legislative assemblies and church courts, but on fields of bloody battle. He spoke of great thinkers, scientists and philosophers wearing themselves out in seeking to wrest from nature the principles of truth by which we guide and govern our lives today, of authors, poets and musicians purchasing their stories, poems and songs with their life's blood. Our own Canadian heritage is a blood-bought possession. In conclusion, he spoke of the cost of redemption, the sacrifice of God's
