

CENTRAL PRISON BARBARITY.
GRIP—(to the Attorney-General)—DO YOU PROPOSE TO TOLERATE THIS BRUTALITY?

MORN AND EVE.

By our Professional Poet.
MORN.

The morn! the morn! the merry, merry morn,
Awakes to joy the farmer lad;
The horn! the horn! the merry, merry horn,
The breakfast horn doth make him glad,
It gladdens his eye and makes it bright,
For the lad has a first-class appetite.

And the buckwheat cakes
His sister makes,
Although sometimes they are no great shakes,
All disappear
Like the fading year.

Then away he speeds to shuck the corn
In the morn, the merry, merry morn.
The morn!

EVE.

The shadows lengthen, and the falling dew,
Hints to the world another day has gone,
The mid-eyed cow of fodder takes a chew,
The hard-up youth his overcoat to pawn,
Yet 'tis not only dew that's falling due:
The note at six, at eight, at twelve months' time
Is to be met; and oh, ye gods! how blue
Doth seem the wight who hath not any dime.
Eve, gentle eve! oh, soothing slumbrous eve!
Watch o'er the drowsy soldier on his post,
Don't rouse him, or perchance he'll cry qui vive!
Nay—let him rest before the sleeping host,
Until the sergeant of the guard comes round
The weary war-worn sentry to relieve,
And in the following morning, I'll be bound,
He won't forget he slumbered on that eve!
Good eve!

—B.
