

Most of the organizations surveyed were either very small or small in terms of number of employees. As shown in Figure 4, more than two-thirds had fewer than 50 employees. Only six per cent of respondents were from very large organizations employing 1,000 or more people.

