

"National governments have the responsibility to pursue sound economic policies which encourage entrepreneurship and the development of free market structures, and which reduce poverty. Governments should give special consideration to the importance of pursuing environmentally sustainable development," said Mrs. Landry. "These are important elements in Canada's dialogue with developing countries."

For further information, media representatives should contact:

Media Relations Office
External Affairs and International Trade Canada
(613) 995-1874