

Plan to be pursued on arriving there—Manner of travelling up the country—Steps to be taken at York—Terms upon which government grants lands—Fees upon grants—Where the emigrant should choose his lands—Things to be attended to in selecting a lot—Plan to be followed by poor emigrants—Different modes of settling—Their comparative advantages—Importance of arriving early in the season—Manner of building a house, and expense—Stock necessary for a new settler—Provisions, and expense of them—Art of chopping soon acquired—Different modes of clearing land—Expense paid by the first crop—Profits of the second—Barn to be erected—Garden to be made—Manner in which settlers assist each other—Their mutual advantages—Different ways of disposing of surplus produce—Occupations during winter—Hauling firewood—Shooting—Mode of life—Articles of diet—Substantial comforts—Advantage of emigrating to Upper Canada—Proofs of this—Fineness of the country—Second class of emigrants—Inducements that the Province offers them—Objections and inconveniences—Emigrants possessing capital—Different ways of employing it—Profits of speculations in land.....241

LETTER XV.

Emigration a serious step—Ideas of different people upon the subject—Attractions of Upper Canada—Happiness of its population—State of society in the Province—Favourable to personal importance—Amusements—Field-sports—Equestrian pleasures—Horticulture—Balls and cards—Character of the Canadians—Beauty of the ladies—Emigration recommended to a certain class of persons—A consolatory hint to the ambitious—Conclusion.....277

LETTER XVI.

Lewiston—Hatred between the Canadians and Americans—Departure from Lewiston—State of the farmers near it—Conversation at a tavern—Cambria post-office—Driver's account