Grey to relapse into a Reformer. But the nation now rallied round the cause, and Lord Grey condescended once more to patronize it.

Lord Grey has the advantage of political study and experience, generous principles and grand views of policy, enlightened knowledge of the laws and constitution, a sincere love of liberty, an exalted integrity of character, upon which calumny has never even attempted to breathe; eloquence of the highest order and ratest stamp, instinct with deliberative wisdom and classic fire, set off by n personal delivery at once popular and noble, Yet with all these qualifications, his tenure of office is precarious. sympathy between him and the people has been long suspended, and he has not yet wholly revived it. Lord Grey should not forget that he is the Minister of the people. If he wishes to continue so, he most condescend to exercise the necessary and not unbecoming arts which secure popular support. Instead of economising his eloquence and standing aloof, he must throw himself implicitly open the tide of popular feeling, and rally opinion round him in great masses.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The Reform Bill was lost on its second reading Oct. 8, in the House of Lords, by a majority of 41. Several disturbances occurred from the disappointment of the people, but none of much consequence.

The Thunderer, 84 gan ship, built of African and English oak, was launched in Sept. She is considered a perfect model of naval architecture.

Savings Banks.—According to a parliamentary return just printed, the gross amount of sums received on account of savings banks is, since their establishment in 1817. £20,760,228; amount of sums paid. £5,648,338; the balance, therefore is £15.111.990. It also states the gross amount of interest paid and credited to savings banks by the commissioners for the reduction of the national debt as £5,141,410 8s. 7d. This is astonishing,—and we should vainly demand credence for it on less authority than the
