

RECONSTRUCTION OR REVOLUTION

Labor's Future Lies in Ballot Box, Says Ballantyne.

Mismanagement of the polling sheets by those in authority, leaving out and putting in others of men and women not entitled to vote and the impossibility of this reason of the working men being able to vote for their own men to the legislature was a feature of many questions put to James Hamilton Ballantyne, president of the Independent Labor Party...

SPIRITUALISM EXPOSED

BY REV. W. G. MILARR. Spiritualism does not believe in God, Christ or the Bible, declared Rev. W. G. Milarr in Bond Street Congregational Church last night...

He gave three propositions which he claimed would dispel all the claims made by the spiritists. First it was believed that on death the spirit returned to the Creator, it was foolish to think that it could be recalled. Secondly, according to accepted religions, the soul went either to paradise or purgatory...

DO NOT COMPETE, SAYS MRS. HUGHES

International Trade Unnecessary—Machinist Probably Untaught Musician.

The evolution of humanity and the ills attending the education of the children in the public schools was the theme of Mrs. J. L. Hughes' address on "Education, Its Past, Present and Future," in the People's Forum, St. George's Hall last evening, and described the changes going on in a child's mind. Mrs. Hughes is the founder of kindergartens in Toronto. "Abject fear," she said, "was the cause of some people being brutal, some cunning, some forgetful, but brutality develops cunning."

She accused humanity of going mad over production. "Trade was the foremost thing in our life, not men. The working hours of a mechanic should be long enough to only produce sufficient to supply the community. Men should not be compelled to toil over a machine in order that goods may be made so that we shall have trade over land and sea. Education must redeem men from the curse of factoryism."

A strong plea was made for the men who keep the factory wheels turning. One man, she said, had sufficient brains to invent a machine, another sufficient to use it and a third was necessary to keep it running. Was not the third man entitled to the same chance as the other two? Was he not destined probably to be a musician, a singer, or something else? Work should only be to produce sufficient for the community, and the longer hours would permit more time for recreation and the higher things of life.

Mrs. Hughes advocated the elimination of competition in many lines, in support of her claim she presented an example of a child being led to chess in order to get ahead of another. The system of Canadian schools ought to be changed, she said and the children allowed more freedom.

CONSIDER MASS MEETING. The machinists of Toronto have founded a journal entitled The Ontario Labor News, a paper recording the interests of progressive trades unionists. This week's issue has an amusing and interesting account of a meeting apparently written by someone who has reached plane 21. The objects of the paper, according to those behind it, are to give news relating to the trade, and to present a series of articles dealing with the science of political economy, sociology and other sciences pertaining to the welfare of workers in general. Herbert Lewis, ultra-radical, is the managing editor, but all that appears in the paper is censored by a committee composed of J. Monroe, H. Kerwin, H. Rigby, J. Young, Herbert Lewis and W. Moore.

The machinists, in their resolution calling for a six-hour day on government contract work and in the trades generally to give opportunity to more men than would be possible with an eight-hour day schedule, point out that strikes were taboo among the machinists during the war so that the sufferings of the soldiers in France might not be unavailing. The machinists are getting in touch with other trades to consider a meeting in the near future to further discuss the present unemployment in Toronto.

Still on strike and going strong is the latest message given out to the press by representatives of the 200 returned soldier employees of the limb factories, under the supervision of the invalidated soldiers' commission, now on strike, the commission having refused the requests of the men: that J. E. Burns, ex-manager of the plant, be appointed as a mediator. It is stated as potential tutor to the new manager, selected but not arrived; 2. that the commission keep its pledge to replace dismissed civilian employees with returned soldiers. Pte. Whale, a returned man being next in line for the position now held by Britishistia, a civilian who replaced Macfarland, another civilian. The representatives of both the men and the commission will again meet in conference this morning but the outlook is not considered bright as yet.

LILLIAN GISH IN THRILLING SCENES

"The Greatest Thing in Life" at the Allen Theatre. One of the most remarkable scenes that have thus far been shown on the screen is in D. W. Griffith's new Art-craft photoplay, "The Greatest Thing in Life," with Lillian Gish in the stellar role, which will be shown at the Allen Theatre this week. The war has swept over a French village where Jennette Peret, the character portrayed by Lillian Gish, is living with her father. They have taken refuge in an underground dugout.

As the French are pressed back by the Hun, a French officer shows Jennette's father how the water jar closes a telephone. With her father wounded and the Hun pounding, killing and slaughtering as they come, the girl takes up the field telephone. At last comes the voice of the young dandified young lover from America whom she has flouted. It means that the man she loves has found his soul in the muck and sludge of the trenches.

New honors await Miss Gish when this vivid and wonderful emotional scene is presented to the public. She is splendidly supported, her leading man being Robert Harron, an actor of ability and wide popularity.

Archie Tako'ski and Stanford McInteer, were arrested at Niagara Falls, Sunday for the Toronto police on charges of shopbreaking. They are alleged to have broken into a store at 2362 West Dundas street, and stole a quantity of cigars. Detective Cronin left the city last night to bring the prisoners back to the city.
