Addressing the Theosophical Society last evening, R. A. Elgood, an elder of the Church of Latter Day Saints, stated that the parents of Mormon stated that the parents of Mormon children note the special talents of their children, and train these gifts to their necessary usefulness in the life of the community. No man, he said is allowed to marry under a certain specified income, and under their law all must provide for their widows and children, all of which has now practically eliminated the curse of polygamy. Prostitution among their adherents is practically unknown.
