meeting of the Legislature. The procuring of the Act or Acts spoken of in these extracts, would be of service as a guide to that Committee—and if half the benefit should result to the Province from the adoption of this, as from that of Mr. Prel's Assault Law, the community will have great cause to rejoice. community will have great cause to rejoice.

House of Commons, February 17.

"Free in Criminal Cases.—Mr. Pear, said, he had given notice of a motion for leave to bring in a bill, the propriety of the immediate object of which could accusely be questioned; that object was, "to abolish all fees heretofore payable by persons on their acquittal or other discharge from any criminal charge." In the year 1815, a bill had passed that house, and the other branch of the legislature, the intention of which he conceived must have been to effect this object; for that year 1315, a bill had pessed that trouse, and the shar branch of the legislature, the intention of which he conseived must have been to effect this object; for that bill enacted, that no fee should be paid on the acquittal of any prisener charged with felony or misdemeanour. But with respect to that bill the construction had been, that is the case of a person charged with felony or misdemeanour, and held to bail, it the case of a person so charged, but set actually in success, the individual so circumstanced was, in the event of his sacquittal, understanding the success of the part of the success of the part of the success of the gasley or held to bail, it he case of a person charged, but set actually in success, the individual fixed that in the way in the event of his sacquittal, understanding the success of the part of the bill which he means to introduce that sight, was to relieve all parties, on acquittal, from paymonts of any fee. Since he had given notice of his motion, the hose member for Cumberland (Sir J. Graham) had given seties that he would move for a committee to inquire into the fees receivable by the elecks of the peace, with reference to the amount of those fees, and the sources from which they areas; and it was his intention not to press his bill on the house, if that came to some resolution on the subject. The right hose goolleman then moved for leave to bring in the bill.—After a short conversation, fix the course of which Sir J. Graham described has someted in all counties, it would be prepared that general inquiry should take place with respect to all fees.—Leave was then given to bring in the bill.
