Canada's New Governor-General and His Lady

SUCCESSING A Governor-General who gave the name of "Byng Boys" to the Canadian troops in France, there is coming to Rideau Hall a Governor-General whose greatest service to the Empire was made in the Far East, in the administration of civil affairs. Lord Willingden is a man who has acquired his title as a reward for brilliant administrative qualities. His training for his work was partly acquired under the celebrated Lord Brassey, when the latter was Governor-General of Australia and the ties between them were close, for he married Lord Brassey's very charming daughter. Picture shows Lord and Lady Willingden, and (inset) Baron Byng, the retiring Governor-General. Below is the main entrance to Rideau Hall, the official vice-regal residence at Ottawa.

Lord and Lady Willingdon Bring Illustrious Traditions To Dominion

Sprung From Old English Yeoman Stock With Roots Deep in Records of Race; Families Emerged Into Diplomatic Life After Fortunes Amassed.

By BLOWDEN DAVIES

Written specially for the Evening Times-Star.

A PENETRATING pen will some day write a history of Rideau Hall which will hinge upon the personalities of its various vice-regal occupants. There have been days when devotion to the arts and to literature were the ruling passions, days when the glamor of royalty made the Hall the focus point of all social eyes; there were days when scions of Britain's oldest and finest aristocracy filled the King's place in his biggest Dominion.

In October it will yield to the sways of an interesting pair as ever held its governance in their hands. Lord and Lady Willingden are not familiar to the average newspaper and magazine reader, but because their duties have been carried out with so little sensation or appeal to lurid interests, that gossip and small talk have had little to do with their names.

OF YOEMAN STOCK

They are of quite different stock to the last few families to occupy the seat of government. Though bearing a title of high degree, they are not aristocrats, in the sense in which Lord and Lady Byng were of the aristocracy, or the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire.

Yankees and Cardinals Held Final Workout This Morning at Stadium

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—After a wait of nearly one week, arrival today of the appointed time for the opening of the 1926 world series found impatient baseball players and their followers ready to welcome the order "play ball." A line, starting at 10 o'clock last night, was growing steadily this morning before the entrances to the Yankee Stadium, where the first two games of the series will be played. They sought a part of the 38,000 grandstand and bleacher tickets made available to customers over the counter.

Speculators Busy

Twenty-five thousand reserved tickets were snapped up in record time on the mail order basis, with an over-subscription of 15,000, when club attaches suspended the count. These tickets fell into the hands of speculators and high prices were asked of the fans who were stymied by the practice period, which only light work permitted the athletes, brought no casualties to either team and Yankees and Cardinals were the same best foot forward with which they staggered through the season, as it has been at earlier stages of the pennant hunt.

BATTLE OF SOUTHPAWS

A battle of southpaws was forecast for the opening clashes for titular honors. Manager Huggins went on record last night with the announcement that Herbert Pennock would toss left handed shots at the Missourians, while Manager Hornsby let it be known that Wm. Sherdel, equally as left-handed as Pennock, was his choice. No widespread dismay was caused among the offensive force by the news that southpaws would face the call. A total of five left-handed batsmen may be counted among the regulars of the two teams.

KLAN BATTLE

GROTON, Mass., Oct. 2.—A revolver and rifle battle between Klan and anti-Klan forces numbering more than 500 persons in which more than 100 shots were fired, shortly after midnight this morning, was under investigation today by town and state police. The disturbance, latest of a long series, which have occurred in various parts of the state in the past two years, was without apparent casualty although police leaned to the theory that the injured, if any, probably were carried off in machines of friends.

UNSETTLED

MARITIME—Fresh to strong southwest winds; cloudy with local showers tonight and part of Sunday. Somewhat warmer; probably some fog.

NEW ENGLAND—Probably showers tonight and Sunday, warmer tonight in Massachusetts; warmer Sunday on the coast, fresh possibly strong south and southwest winds.
