URGENT TO SHOP IN MORNING HOURS IS REPEATED

Here are Some More Good Things Found in Shopping Tour

Every day is a particularly busy one now in the stores, with the rush on to make selection of Christmas gifts as the time before the great festival becomes very short. Merchants are looking for a Saturday rush and are anxious to have the goods of next week. They are desirous of seeing as many shoppers as possible in the mornings, as there is more time to give each then. The buyers, too, benefit much by this. Here are some more results of visits to the stores by Times-Star reporters.

JAMES G. CARLETON
With his large show-windows and store attractively trimmed in the season's colors, James G. Carleton, 248 Waterford street is well prepared with a large stock to look after the Christmas trade. This store features staple lines of medium price and a gift can be found here for every member of the family. Boxed handkerchiefs in the latest colors are featured in the women's department, as well as stockings in various shades and fabrics. For men a gift of a pair of warm woolen socks for during the winter months is ever welcome. Special boxed neckties and shirts in a wide range of prices suggest many a suitable present. Special in woolen goods are featured in the children's department including knitted caps, sweaters, stockings, etc. The "lady of the house" would be delighted with a gift that could be used for the home. This could be found here in the fine assortment of oilcloths, linoleums, squares, curtains and draperies.

DALLARD'S, KING STREET.
This store, in King street, always popular with women, is especially attractive this season. The complete stock of ladies' underwear is a special feature and contains no end of valuable gift suggestions. In crepe de chine is found the popular "dancing set," composed of step-in and bandies to match; envelope chemises, nightgowns and pajamas in all the delicate shades; also tricotette sets, bloomers and vests in orchid, pink, peach and blonde. D'Allard's are also showing a complete line of pongee and silk underwear. Specialty in the underwear department are handsome broadened pyjamas in beautiful golden shades. The display of dresses offers a wonderful opportunity for gifts. Evening gowns in chiffon, velvet, crepe, satin and the fashionable metallic cloth are featuring the newest shades, with the beautiful trim much in evidence. Attractive afternoon dresses are in unlimited supply. D'Allard's are also showing a charming line of serge dresses—just the thing for the business girl. To complete the tour of this popular store, an inspection of the special selection of tailored white full silk blouses, companions of the "Tom Boy" shirt, offers many suggestions for gifts.

ENERGY SUPPLY CO., LTD.
Electric appliances of varied assortment, radios, ranges, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, reading lamps and shades, flash-light and Christmas tree lighting sets, are displayed in this store at 44-46 Dock street, and offer the shopper an excellent opportunity to purchase a gift both practical and ornamental. The appliances include Hot-Point toasters, percolators, irons, table grills, and water heaters. A new feature this year is the piano lamp, a small and very neat article that rests on top of the piano and is adjustable so that the glare of light will not annoy the player. The lamp is up in art metals with frosted glass shades in pretty color scheme. Then there are the electric fixtures, displayed as they would see them in your own home, a space in the rear of the main store being specially furnished and fitted for this purpose. Those inclined towards electrical furnishings should visit this store without delay.

C. H. TOWNSEND PIANO CO., LTD.
With a large stock of beautiful Heintzmann and Weber and Schubert pianos, offered at special prices, as a Christmas gift featured, Townsend's at 54 King's street, are at the front in shopping competition. Power Commission's quarters in Canterbury street are attractive for those who wish to give the housewife a gift that will bring her joy and happiness every day in the year for the rest of her life and reduce her own home duties to a minimum. Here will be found on display electric ranges and refrigerators. ## As Hiram Sees It

"Do you mind," said Mr. Hiram Hornbeam to the Times-Star reporter, when they used to have the two old ferryboats, Wan Gundy and 'an' Wan Lung? "I remember them well," said the reporter. "Occasionally one of them would wander down the harbor and both of them had a weakness for Navy Island Bay." "But they wasn't no liquor inspectors in them days," said Hiram. "True," said the reporter. "Well," said Hiram—"with all their sailing the Wan Gundy and Wan Lung didn't chalk up no such de-faults as the boats you got now. I see one of 'em has another leak somewhere." "Leak?" said the reporter. "Are you looking for leaks, too?" "I hear they're gonna hev a meter put onto every ferry that works for the city." "Isn't that a pipe-dream?" queried the reporter. "It's what a feller told me up to the market this mornin'," said Hiram. "That settles it," said the reporter.
