

NEGRO CHEMISTRY MYSTIFIES CROWD

Discoveries Revealed by God, Professor Tells Women's Society.

New York, Nov. 21.—Dr. George W. Carver, a negro professor of Tuskegee Institute and son of an ex-slave, spoke at the forty-second anniversary celebration of the Women's Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church of America, held at the Marble Collegiate Church, and astonished the large assembly with his discoveries in agricultural chemistry.

He brought exhibits off his discoveries from the Alabama school founded by Booker T. Washington, showing how he had produced 100 useful products from the sweet potato, including rubber, coffee, candy, dyes, paste, paint, starch, vinegar, ink, shoe blacking and molasses, and 166 products from the humble peanut. He said that his discoveries were a direct revelation from God, that he had no great mind, and that he never used even a book in his laboratory. He said the moment God revealed a discovery to him the method came with the idea. In half an hour after the idea was revealed to him, he said, he produced the yolk of an egg from a Porto Rican sweet potato.

Refused Offer of Big Salary.

It was brought out at the meeting that although Dr. Carver was poorly paid, he had refused the offer of a princely salary from Thomas A. Edison, who wished to have the professor join his laboratory staff at Orange, N. J. He also has refused offers from others, preferring to remain with his own people and help them solve economic conditions in the South.

A large factory is now being erected outside Tuskegee, where paint is to be produced from the sweet potato. "I've never received any money for my discoveries," Dr. Carver said. "Somebody who had benefited by one of my products from the peanut sent me $100 the other day, but I sent it back to him."

His most important and most recent discovery in a peanut product has to do with pulmonary treatment. While Dr. Carver would not admit that he was on the trail of a discovery for the cure of tuberculosis, he declared that his new product, which he called a "creosote solution," was a step forward for the treatment of all pulmonary troubles, and that it was as well as a medicine. He showed that it was perfectly easy to emulsify creosote with the peanut product. The whole difficulty in chemistry up to now, he said, had been to find something with which creosote would emulsify.

Some in the audience uttered when the professor began to talk about the peanut. First he showed how, with the arrival of the boll weevil evil, the South was looking for some other money crop than cotton; then how the sweet potato left the soil useless while the peanut fertilized it. He also recommended the peanut as a muscle builder to those who wished to avoid fattening products like the sweet potato.

Thirty-two Kinds of Milk in Peanut.

"I reckon some of you folks don't think so much of the peanut," he said. "Why, I've discovered 32 different kinds of milk in the peanut, and richer than cow's milk."

He told how in the clay of the country around Tuskegee he had discovered 800 different colored paints, one of them an Egyptian blue, the color so frequently used by the ancient Egyptians, and the making of which was a lost art. A plant is to be built, he said, to produce paints from this clay. A year ago Dr. Carver won the Spingarn Medal, presented annually for the most distinguished achievement by an American citizen of African descent. It was from his discoveries that the Government made bread from sweet potato flour during the war. He is a member of the Royal Society of Arts, London.

DON'T START MUSIC STUDY SOON ENOUGH

Montreal Lecturer Speaks of Benefits—Health and Longevity.

In a time when much is heard of mental "complexes" and the evils of repression, music furnishes a most pleasant and efficacious remedy for many types of nervous ills. Mrs. James McDougall told members of the Delphic Study Club at a luncheon in Montreal. Her paper, "The Need of Music in Everyday Life," concisely summed up the benefits—physical, mental and artistic—to be derived from the study of music.

Children in this country do not commence the study of music in the early enough. Mrs. McDougall declared. She believes it should be given a more important place in the school curriculum. In her opinion, too narrow a view is taken of its value, it not being generally recognized that music study has a general stimulating effect on many children who otherwise remain dull and unresponsive.

Physically, said the speaker, the study of music proves of great benefit to those following it. Relaxation, a prime requisite both in instrumental and vocal work, eases nervous tension and fosters self-control. Music, too, provides a valuable outlet for the emotions. This fact, she said, was becoming more and more recognized, and in some hospitals music is now being given as a regular form of treatment to nervous patients. In the study of singing the necessity for correct breathing benefitted the entire body, and the poised all singers have to acquire is also of much benefit to them. To sum up, declared the speaker in conclusion, the study of music tends to encourage health and longevity.

FAMOUS ACTRESS CANNOT ACCEPT

Clara Morris is Too Ill to Accept Theatre's Invitation.

New York, Nov. 21.—Crippled by rheumatism, Clara Morris, famous actress of the last century, gracefully declined a letter from the public by the F. F. Proctor management to appear at a "Clara Morris night" at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, Broadway and 28th street.

The aged actress—she now is 76 years old—wrote the letter from her home in Tuckahoe, to William Quaid, manager of the theatre, in answer to his request again to appear at that playhouse as she did on its opening night in 1875.

The actress pleaded she was not able to appear because of her physical condition, saying she had left her home only four times during the last eight years.

Born in Toronto, Canada, on March 17, 1848, Clara Morris (Mrs. Frederick C. Harriot) made her theatrical debut in the 3d Cleveland Academy of Music in 1861. By 1869 she already had risen to the role of leading lady, and in 1870, in Daly's Theatre here, she scored her first great New York triumph.

CONDITIONS RIPE FOR EXPANSION

Major Developments Point to Early Renewed Activity.

Why shouldn't business improve very substantially? asks Forbes Magazine, New York, and continues:—

Almost every major development points towards expansion.

First—The gap between agricultural and merchandise prices has been virtually eliminated, so that our enormous agricultural population will have from now on greatly increased purchasing power.

Second—Employment figures show improvement, and as real wages are about as high as ever known in this country, the purchasing power of our many millions of wage earners is and promises to continue to be almost, if not quite, unprecedented.

Third—Money never before was more plentiful for business, industrial, railroad and public utility purposes, and as the rates charged are unusually low, our enterprising leaders will feel encouraged to borrow and utilize funds freely for a wide variety of purposes.

Fourth—Our transportation systems, representing an investment of some $20,000,000,000 and our largest expenditures, are better circumstances financially and physically than they have been in many years. They have been purchasing enormous quantities of equipment, but as they never before were called upon to carry so great a volume of traffic, they are likely to continue to make unusually heavy expenditures—and to be able to meet them.

Fifth—The demoralization in Europe has adversely affected our foreign trade during recent years, but now that Europe has definitely turned her face towards harmony and recuperation, the prospects are that this country will furnish various European borrowers hundreds of millions of dollars in the aggregate and that some considerable part of this money will go to purchase American commodities and products.

Sixth—The decision of Calvin Coolidge—if the election has that result—will be accepted by financial and business leaders as conducive to conservatism rather than radicalism at the seat of government, and this can scarcely fail to stimulate enterprise.

Seventh—Should the election be followed by an influx of buyers, the effect upon prices in most directions could scarcely fail to be marked. If this occurs, the long-observed policy of hand-to-mouth buying is likely to be abandoned, with rather emphatic consequences.

Eighth—Our public utility enterprises are rapidly becoming a factor of the first importance, and now that they are receiving more consideration from the regulatory bodies, they are planning improvements and expansions which will put many millions of dollars into circulation and give employment to large numbers of workers.

Ninth—Railroad consolidations of unprecedented magnitude, as well as mining mergers, may play a spectacular part in arousing the interest of investors and in stimulating general sentiment during coming months.

Tenth—The stock market, having related all attempts to precipitate a prediction "crash," may also play an effective part in bringing on a business boom.

LIQUOR OFFICIAL FACES CHARGE OF $147,042 THEFT

Defence in Newfoundland
Case Asks for Withdrawal
From Jury.

SAYS NO EVIDENCE

Claim Made That No Record of Appointment is Available.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 21.—The hearing of the case of Rex vs. J. T. Meaney, former liquor controller, began yesterday before Chief Justice, Sir W. Horwood. The charges against the accused are:

1. That he stole $147,042.76, the property of His Majesty the King, while employed in the public service.

2. That he stole alcoholic liquors to the value of $147,042.76.

3. That he fraudulently applied the said sum.

4. That he fraudulently disposed of alcoholic liquors entrusted to him.

H. A. Winter, Crown counsel, conducted the prosecution.

Mr. Fox, for the defence, moved for withdrawal of the case from the jury as there was no trace of evidence to show prisoner guilty of larceny under charge one and two or of fraudulent purposes. Counsel held the Crown must prove that the prisoner diverted to his own use some specific amount in order to be found guilty. He also pointed out that there was no evidence submitted to show Meaney had ever been appointed controller.

Mr. Winter, for the Crown, was heard in reply and the Chief Justice reserved his judgment on the objections raised.

A Little Lesson in Politeness.

I freely admit that this is one of an exceedingly ancient vintage, but it is a railroad story, and it has been my observation that railroad men like their stories to be well seasoned with age. It is a yarn which the late J. T. Hanrahan, president of the Illinois Central system, was fond of telling on himself. Mr. Hanrahan was sitting in his office at Chicago one day when a burly person entered, without ceremony of knocking.

"Me name's Casey," he said. "I want a pass to St. Louis. I wurk in the yard."

"That is no way to ask for a pass," said Mr. Hanrahan. "You should introduce yourself politely. Come back in an hour and try again."

At the end of the hour came the caller. Doffing his hat he inquired:

"Are yez Mr. Hanrahan?"

"I am."

"Me name is Patrick Casey. I've been wurkin' out in the yard."

"Glad to know you, Mr. Casey. What can I do for you?"

"Ye can go to h— I've got a job on the Wabash!"—Irvin Cobb, in the Boston Globe.
