Corn Troubles Ended in 48 Hours

A Blue-jay plaster is applied in a jiffy, and the puffing of the corn ends at once. You simply forget it. The bit of B & B wax gently loosens the corn. In two days you lift it out. No pain, no soreness, no inconvenience.

Compare that with old-time ways. Can you wonder that Blue-jay is now being used by so many corn sufferers? Can you wonder that Blue-jay is now being used by fifty times over—any time of the year? People who once try Blue-jay will never again be troubled with corns.

Her many friends in this city and province will be shocked to hear of the death of Mrs. Addy, wife of Dr. Henry G. Addy, which occurred yesterday morning in her home, 147 Union street. Mrs. Addy was well known and popular. She was ever ready to aid any movement which had for its object the betterment of those around her. Besides her husband she is survived by four sons and four daughters. They are the Misses Hannah and Ella, at home; Mrs. T. M. Jones, of Woodstock, and Mrs. A. P. MacIntyre, of this city. Doctor Told Her She Did Not Have A Pinch Of Good Blood In Her Body
Mrs. Doniphe P. Cormier, Middle Sackville, N.B., says: "In the spring of 1897 I was all run down, and the doctor told me I had not a pinch of good blood in my body. I took different remedies from doctors, but they did not seem to do me any good. After having taken a lot of different other kinds of medicine, and they did not seem to benefit me, I was almost in despair and did not know what to do until my husband met a lady and told her about my sickness and she told him to try Burdock Blood Bitters so she received the greatest benefit from using it. My husband went and bought a bottle, and after having taken it I felt better so I kept on using the bottle till I felt so well until I had taken six bottles. I am now strong and well. I am so glad that my being so well is due to the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. One spring since then I was not feeling very well and had a lot of trouble so I thought I would procure a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and after I had taken two I was able to do all of hard work all the summer, and I never felt better in my life. In the winter of 1906 I had pneumonia, and I left me with a severe pain in the left side. Every morning when I would get out of bed I had to sit down for a while it was so painful. After I got used to Burdock Blood Bitters the pain disappeared completely. It has also cured me of bleeding piles. I have received no small benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters that you may publish this so it may help others as it has me."

Extra Session April 4
Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—So probable is it that an extra session of congress will be necessary in order to get action on the Canadian reciprocity agreement that President Taft has fixed April 4 as the date on which such a session may be called. There was no change in the situation in the senate today regarding the Canadian reciprocity agreement and the leaders see no hope of bringing to a vote this bill. The McCall bill to carry the agreement into effect.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"YES, my dear, after all I did for her in introducing her to those people and trying to do everything in my power to make her vacation pleasant, she never has shown me the slightest gratitude. Isn't that trying?" I declare, it has taught me a lesson.

So said the lady on the seat in front of me in the car. Now, please don't accuse me of eavesdropping for I assure you that her tones were so forcibly audible that I should have had to put my hands over my ears or get under the seat to avoid hearing her.

Just there I reached my destination and got off the car, so I wasn't given to hear what the lesson was—indeed, the lady elucidated that matter.

I rather suspect she left it to the intelligence of her hearer to grasp that the lesson was that it isn't right to be ungrateful.

Wonder if there is any weakness of human nature more common and more unconscious than this greedy demand for gratitude for services done on the part of people who at the same time demand credit from the world for their generosity in performing said services.

Isn't it queer at more of us aren't logical enough to see that the moment we demand an equivalent in gratitude that moment we invalidate our bill for unselfishness?

To do good deeds because one has to look in the gratitude they call forth is a no more meritorious than to do kindnesses because one expects favors in return.

The only merit is to do kind things because one knows they should be done, and because one wants to help the world along.

As for myself I haven't any use for her kind of generosity.

Real generosity inwardly shrinks from thanks and accepts them only because it knows that thanks are the natural outlet for the recipient's state of mind and that it is cruel to deny him the opportunity to express them.

Everywhere there are people on boards and committees who do much work without pay and take great credit to themselves for their generosity, but who all the time are exacting a continued toll of gratitude and praise, and who if this is not promptly paid get in a huff and resign or at least relax their efforts.

What funny self-seeking folks this planet is peopled with, isn't it?

Present company always excepted, of course.

Daily Hints for the Cook

CHICKEN SANDWICHES
Mix up five fine cold boiled or roasted chicken, put into a saucepan with gravy, water or cream enough to soften it, add a good piece of butter, a pinch of pepper; work it very smooth while it is heating until it looks almost like paste; then spread it on a plate to cool. Spread it between slices of buttered bread.

HAM SANDWICHES
Make a dressing of one half cup of butter, one table-spoon of mixed mustard, one of salad oil, a little salt, and a dash of a pinch of salt and a white of an egg. Rub the butter to a cream, and the other ingredients mix thoroughly, then stir in as much chopped ham as will make a consistent spread between this and buttered bread. Omit oil and substitute melted butter if preferred.

CELERY SANDWICHES
Take half a cup of tender celery and quarter of a cup of pure, both chopped fine (peas are especially good), one and a half table-spoons of mayonnaise dressing, a dash of cayenne and a quarter of a teaspoon of salt. Mix all these ingredients well and use as a filling in sandwiches.

APPLE FRUIT
Take firm apples of uniform size and pare and core them. Cut crosswise in slices one quarter of an inch thick, sprinkle with diluted orange juice and sugar and let stand 10 minutes; dry on a cloth, then dip in sugar and butter and fry in hot, deep fat. Fry to a light brown, remove from fat with butter and dry on a cloth. In an open tin until all are done. Run in sugar and serve on a folded napkin. Eat with a sweet sauce.

REV. B. H. NOBLES IN STRONG ADDRESS AT EVERY DAY CLUB

Rev. B. H. Nobles delivered a stirring address on temperance to a large gathering in the Every Day Club last evening. He began by remarking that drinking liquor robbed a man. He might not think so, but he was robbed in the first place of the confidence of his fellow-men. When a man is made between two men for a position the man who did not drink at all had the preference even over one who drank only in moderation. Drink also robbed a man of physical efficiency, for it attacked every nerve and organ in the body, in proportion to the extent to which he drank. It also affected his mental powers, impaired his passions and robbed him of what was best in his nature.

Rev. Mr. Nobles next considered what the president of the club, he urged next to the man who felt that an occasional drink would not hurt him to give up for the sake of those who could not drink in moderation. The homes of some men are not perhaps the best places in which to live if they are drinking hard. If so, then have an Every Day Club that shall be a place where men can get away from their drinking habits and surround them with good influences.

Mr. Nobles unopposedly condemned men who in the nightclubs of this town and elsewhere remained in the liquor habit. Commending some remarks made by the president of the club, he urged next to unite with it and make it a powerful influence to be wielded in social and moral reform work in this city. Greater than sectarian differences or other questions on which men's views may vary is the need of the man who is in the gutter and the man who is tending in that direction.

While working at her home at 604 Main street, Saturday morning, Mrs. William Chapman, wife of William Chapman, a member of the crew of the government steamer Stanley, was suddenly stricken with an attack of heart disease and died before any assistance could be rendered. Between 9 and 10 o'clock Saturday morning she heard a crash as if someone had fallen to the floor in the lower flat. She decided to investigate, but found the doors all locked. IS MAKING A SUCCESS OF SHEEP RAISING

Experiment at Markhamville, Kings County, Proving Claim for New Brunswick

Probably few people outside of the stock breeders are aware that within the last year a large sheep farm has been established in the vicinity of Sussex, and that the success that has attended the venture is likely to have the effect of inducing others to go more extensively into this line of work.

This pioneer of sheep raising on a large scale in New Brunswick, is James A. Teller, formerly a partner in the firm of Teller Bros., of Paris, Ont., probably the largest sheep breeders in Canada. Mr. Teller is located in the mountain back of Sussex, overlooking the village of Markhamville.

As a member of the firm of Teller Bros., he travelled practically all over Canada, and the larger part of the United States, exhibiting fairs and exhibiting stock, and he expressed the opinion that nowhere has been found more suitable for sheep-raising than right here in New Brunswick.

He looked into two or three properties, and he decided that there was a lot of land here that was well adapted for sheep-raising. He purchased two or three properties, and he is now raising about 100 sheep and to raise sufficient corn, alfalfa and other products necessary to help with the sheep, and to supply his own private wants. At present his flock is hardly one-half of that number, and he is raising under certain conditions, the farm was uncultivated last summer and he is unable to supply the diversity of diet to the sheep that he would like.

So far the sheep have wintered well, and he is most sanguine about his prospects. It is worthy of note, that although Mr. Teller formerly lived in Paris, the home of the Penman Manufacturing Co., he says that that firm was very independent about purchasing wool from them, but preferred to send their representatives to the maritime provinces and get wool here which is admittedly of better fibre.

It is claimed that there are a lot of other good farms available for this industry, and Mr. Teller was offered several others that he considered excellent for the purpose, and it was only after considerable thought that he decided upon his present location.

At the winter fair in Amherst, Mr. Teller's more than a fair share of the prize money, and he expects to come out well at the fall fair this year.

He is a member of the Amherst Agricultural Society, and he is a lot of other good farms available for this industry, and Mr. Teller was offered several others that he considered excellent for the purpose, and it was only after considerable thought that he decided upon his present location.

He came out of the Public Library and sat down on a bench in the neighboring park. Opening a book he began to read.

A friend came up and hailed him. "Hello, Bill," said the friend, "been getting a new book from the library?" Without taking his eyes from the page, Bill replied: "No, I ain't been getting a new book. I've been getting this old one renewed for two weeks more."

"What book is it?" pursued the friend. "Lay Miscellaneous," responded Bill, with dogged determination, "and I'll finish it if it kills me!"

"Victor Hugo, hey?" continued the friend; "do you like his books? Ever read any others by him?"
