BRITISH CAPITAL AND CANADA'S TRADE POLICY

(Winnipeg Tribune)

Foremost British capitalists said before the vote on reciprocity that the extension of trade would make Canada a more important country for the investment of British capital. The Toronto News does not have to go far to find that Toronto and Montreal see that capital is not very particular about flags, so long as the security is fairly good. We have seen during a few years the operations of W. C. Van Horn in Cuba. He has expended millions upon millions there. And Hicks and Mann have been expending hundreds of thousands in South America.

The Massey-Harris Company has expended millions in Batavia, New York, and will spend many more millions. British capitalists and Canadian capitalists are ready to invest their money in any country, under any flag, where it will bring the largest return. If reciprocity in markets means more return for British capital than more of it will come. If it means less return, then we'll have less British capital.

The assertion that since Sept. 21 real estate is firmer in Canada, not a fact either east or west. Reciprocity meant increased value for every foot of agricultural land in Ontario. It meant also an immediate advance in land values in Western Canada. Every operator in farm lands knows this statement to be absolutely true. However, the people have made their bed and they must lie upon it. It will take time for the market to look for the greatest advance in the history of our country to accustom themselves to some that slower progress. This country cannot help making progress, and to progress is bound to bring about necessary trade reforms in spite of the desire to hold the West as a mere preserve for the East for all time.

FUTURE OF LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT TO TONIGHT'S MEETING

Support Expected Not Fathomable Here and Whole Matter Will Be Taken up in Stone Church

On the decision of a meeting at the Stone church school room tonight at 8 o'clock will turn the question whether the laymen's missionary movement is to be continued in St. John or will become a thing of the past. This movement has met with tremendous success in other parts of Canada and in the United States and was organized in St. John some years ago, but the leaders have found interest at such a low ebb within the last few months that they will abandon the organization altogether unless there is an emphatic expression of opinion in favor of its continuance by men of all the denominations at the meeting tonight.

Some weeks ago as a part of a Canada-wide campaign a provincial convention lasting three days to be addressed by Sir Andrew Fraser, late governor of Bengal, was set for November 29-31, and this with the rest of the work will be cancelled unless the laymen are present to promise strong support tonight.

Notice to this effect was sent to all the city pastors by Rev. Dr. Flinders, chairman of the committee and announced from the pulpits yesterday.

Dr. Flinders Discussed It

When seen last evening Dr. Flinders said that while the movement may have

King Alfonso Transfers Summer Home to Santander—The English Receiver of Wrecks a Man of Great Powers—American Dollars in Paris

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company.)

Santander is in future to be the seaside and summer home of King Alfonso, his wife and his children, in lieu of San Sebastian. At the latter place King Alfonso has no residence of his own, and in the guest of his mother, Queen Cristina, at her chateau of Genaro, which is not by any means a large or pretentious establishment. Cristina built it when the king was in his childhood, and it was necessary to lodge most of the dignitaries of the royal household in the chateau and state houses leased for the purpose in the town of San Sebastian.

Now that King Alfonso has several children of his own and that his surviving sister's family is constantly growing—another baby came last week for the royal family, especially when the party is supplemented by the children of his first wife, the late Infanta Mercedes, with their father, the Infant Carlos of Bourbon, and his second wife, a sister of the king of Orleans?

Then, too, the opening of public gambling tables at San Sebastian by Mr. Marquis de Fontenay, who is visiting in the city of Santander, has had the result of attracting to San Sebastian a class of people who have not previously frequented the city of San Sebastian, and, taking advantage of this notorious fact, a beautiful and spacious seaside residence, known as the Palacete, and which has been lately completed and is now being furnished.

It is a gift of the city to the king and calculated to prove a very profitable investment to Santander—since it cannot fall to have the effect of attracting to the city, during the summer, not only the various members of the government and the dignitaries of the court, as well as all those members of the aristocracy and of society who love to bask in the sunshine of royalty.

The people of Santander first became imbued with the idea through the frequency of King Alfonso's visits, through the frequent visits of the king and his family, and above all by his delight in the regatta which are one of the most popular features of the city. Of late years the king has taken an active part in all these maritime sports, invariably sailing in his own yacht, and incidentally rendering Santander quite as important and as the headquarters of the court as the city of Genoa in Great Britain and Kiel is in Germany.

Charles V. had been on many occasions the object of the king's visits, and he landed there in 1922 to take possession of the throne of Spain, and he embarked there on his return home with Duke "Steuers" of Buckingham, and his wife, in search of a royal wife.

And it is in the person of the king, the object of the king's visits, and he landed there in 1922 to take possession of the throne of Spain, and he embarked there on his return home with Duke "Steuers" of Buckingham, and his wife, in search of a royal wife.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"I THINK my mother ought to be called the 'where is it lady,'" a quaint little boy once commented, and to throw the youngest of a large family, and he had heard his mother so often appealed to in this way by the various members of the household that he had good reason for his suggestion.

I fancy there are a good many homes in which 'the where is it lady' might be one of the household's titles.

For have myself observed not a few families where the habit of appealing to mother to find anything which does not come readily to hand is a fixed one. And a first resort is what she is frequently made to do, it is so much easier to say, "Where is so-and-so?" and to throw the responsibility onto mother's mind, than to use your own brains; it is so much simpler to say, "I can't find something or other," and have mother come down or up and help you hunt than to go poking about by yourself, that many of us get into the habit of making no effort to do anything else.

"Where is the milk bottle?" How can I go and get the milk if you don't tell me where the milk bottle is?" spitters little brother. He has seen that milk bottle on the pantry shelf a dozen times, but, of course, mother gets up and gets it for him.

And all this means that that mother must bear all the body and brain fatigue that hunting for things means—and myself, I think there is nothing more tiring than hunting for things—which should be distributed over the shoulders of the whole family.

Now I believe that "I can't find it," and "Where is it?" are habits that all children should be checked.

Both for mother's sake and their own.

It is not to be thought of until he finds them will have more self reliance and initiative than the child who gets into the "Where is it?" habit.

A mother whose family does their own hunting for things instead of piling it all on her shoulders, will have less care to lessen her chances of becoming a happy old grandmother.

PLEA FOR PLAYGROUNDS IN THE CITY OF OTTAWA

(Ottawa Journal)

Earl Grey's phrase "spacious grounds" recalls the proposition which Controller James Davidson four years ago framed and promoted for the purpose of establishing a number of city playgrounds. The scheme was well planned and well thought out, and it is now secured six or seven "spacious grounds and open places" fairly distributed in the city.

There is no doubt that the playgrounds of the present generation are hardly possible in the future, a mistake seems hardly possible as far as the character of the playgrounds is concerned. It is an advantage that such grounds would increase in value, and it is a disadvantage that they would be taken back more than the money put into them. Nevertheless, the proposition was turned down by the people, a by-law to provide for the establishment of such grounds was defeated, and by the irony of fate the defeat came just at the time when a rapid advance was beginning in the values of Ottawa real estate. The playgrounds which the ratepayers agreed to pay $100,000 for four years ago could be sold for probably a quarter of a million today.

There should be a revival of the plan of providing a series of city playgrounds. The cost would be far heavier now, but at the least would be probably less than it will ever be again, and certainly less than it will ever be after two or three more years. Any growing city on this continent can afford to invest in real estate within its own limits as a mere matter of finance. The investment in the playgrounds is a real estate investment, and it is a real estate investment that will pay for itself in the long run.

The Faubourg St. Germain in Paris, popularly known as "the Noble Faubourg," is a residential district of the metropolis, the residences of the old aristocracy, will soon become a thing of the past, at any rate, as far as the character of the residences is concerned. The rich American residents of the district of expatriation, having found it impossible, despite all that has been said to the contrary, to obtain a social success in their own country, have been buying up the whole quarter of the town by means of a heavy expenditure of dollars. A few of the purchasers are retaining the palaces which they have bought with the grand old gardens, designed in many instances by Le Notre, and these are being converted into exclusive clubs. But in far too many instances the superb old mansions are being torn down and are being converted along with their beautiful gardens, into building sites for huge apartment houses of the skyscraper order. The profits already realized by American speculators in this manner are enormous.

LOSS $5,000 TO $6,000

Serious Fire at Bass River, Kent County—News of Moncton

Moncton, N. B., Oct. 8.—The store, dwelling and barn, owned by David Clark, general merchant, on the corner of St. John street, were destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock this morning.

The fire started in the store and had made such headway that nothing could be saved. The flames spread to the house and barn, immediately adjoining, and these buildings, with all their contents, including furniture, the season's crops, etc., were soon in ashes.

The loss is heavy, amounting to $5,000 or $6,000, with insurance of $1,500. Mr. Clark conducts a general store and carried $2,000 or $3,000 worth of stock, and his loss will be severely felt. How the fire originated is a mystery.

While men were at work at the I. C. R. gas plant at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon cleaning and blowing out the tubes, an explosion occurred and two workmen, named Charles Barlock and James Elliott, were badly injured. They were severely burned about the head and arms and were hurried to the hospital, where their injuries were attended. It was feared at first one of the men would lose a hand, but later reports are more favorable.

About 4:30 this morning the police heard cries for help coming from the direction of Bridge street, and hastening in that direction they found flames coming from a house occupied by Patrick Elliott. Entering the house they found fire in Mrs. Elliott's room, and the woman leaning on the window. She was carried out and resuscitated, but had the police been a few minutes later she would have been burned to death. The fire was suppressed without much damage. The fire is supposed to have been started by upsetting a lamp.

Dr. J. L. Henderson, president, and E. Mitchell, consulting engineer, of the Moncton Tramways, Electricity & Gas Company, arrived in the city Saturday afternoon from England. They are here to look over the street railway, and the natural gas installation. Mr. Mitchell has not yet had time to look over the work, but states the cars will be running in Moncton in the time stipulated in the agreement with the city.

HANDSOMELY GOWNED PAIR ARE ARRESTED

Women Accused of Shopping in New York Department Store

ONE OFFERS JEWELS

New York, Oct. 8.—Charged with shoplifting Mrs. Helen Green, a handsome young woman who gave her address as No. 100 Spruce street, Philadelphia, and Miss Anna Merrill Jaque, even prettier than Mrs. Green, who said she lived at No. 29 East Haines street, Germantown, were locked up in the West Thirtieth street station house. Mrs. Green said she was twenty-two years old. She was handsomely gowned and the jewels she wore were worth thousands of dollars. Her companion said she was twenty-nine years old. They were followed from a Fifth avenue department store by John Larkin, a detective, and upon his complaint were taken in custody by Detectives Hyman and Hughes, of the central office.

In the police station Mrs. Green begged the police to take her diamonds and jewelry home. She said she would give them to her husband. "Oh, please let me go!" screamed the woman, the tears streaming down her face. "Here, take my rings," she pleaded as she started to strip them from her fingers. "Shall we notify your husband?" asked Lieutenant Morris.

"No! I'd rather die first," she replied while her companion stood by sobbing.

Larkin says that he noticed the two women in the store and that Mrs. Green carried a Gladstone bag. He says he saw her take a piece of silk from the remnant counter and place it in the bag. Later, he says, she went to the leather goods department and there, he says, Mrs. Green picked up two leather pocketbooks. These, he led her into the diamond department, who placed them under her raincoat and later put them in the bag.

When they left the store he told them they were wanted inside.

"Who are you? How dare you?" asked Mrs. Green.

Larkin says he told them who he was and they returned to the store with him, where the silk, valued at $13.54 and the purses at $23 were found with four silk wrist bands and a table cover that were not taken from the store in which Larkin is employed.

Weep When Arrested

In the office the women broke down and begged not to be arrested. Crying bitterly they were taken in charge by central office men. Mrs. Green said her husband was employed by a firm in the oil business. When Mrs. Mullane, the police matron, tapped the two women on the shoulder and led them back to be locked up Mrs. Green gave a scream of despair. "Oh, this disgrace, this disgrace," she moaned. "If I get a chance I'll kill myself."

Fred. Kain
Charles Kain, 51 King street, on Saturday, received word of the death of his brother Fred in Boston. He was the youngest son of the late John Kain. He was born in this city, where he was at one time employed as a plumber with H. Doody. He left here several years ago and has since resided at Boston. His mother, wife, two brothers, Jacob Spragg and two sisters, Mrs. Dela Burns, of Revere (Mass.), and Miss Adelaide Spragg.

Ida J. Seberry
The death of Ida J., wife of William P. Seberry, occurred at her late residence, the corner of Duke and Prince William streets, yesterday afternoon. She is survived by her husband, one brother, Jacob Spragg and two sisters, Mrs. Dela Burns, of Revere (Mass.), and Miss Adelaide Spragg.

David Jardine
David Jardine, J. P. of the big lumber firm of Farnsworth & Jardine, and a native of Kent county, died at Liverpool Saturday morning, aged 81. Mr. Jardine went to England when a mere youth and by his industry and ability succeeded in winning a high place in the business and social life of Liverpool.

Mr. Jardine has one sister, Mrs. Laurence McLaren, resident in this city, while a brother, Robert Jardine, lives in London. He was a member of the firm of Kerr, Bolton & Co., East India merchants, but had retired from active work. Dr. Murray McLaren, J. S. McLaren and the Misses McLaren are nephews and nieces, and George and Struan Robertson are nephews.

Mr. Jardine filled a very big and very important place, not only in the business life of Liverpool, but in its social life as well. He was long chairman of the Clyde trust which manages all the great dock and harbor works of that great world port and was connected with many of the big commercial and industrial enterprises of the city. Something of the place he filled in this community is disclosed in the following brief article which appeared on April 13, 1901, in the Traveller on the occasion of his appointment to the position of chairman of the Cornard line of steamships:

Miss Dorothy Lefurgy
Mrs. Dorothy Lefurgy of Summerside, P. E. I., wife of the Hon. John Lefurgy, died at her home on Saturday night at the age of 77 years.

Enoch Price
Enoch Price of Moncton, aged seventy-six years and a resident of the seaway town for thirty-five years, died on Saturday of creeping paralysis.

The High Cost of Souls
Rev. "Billy" Sunday, the former baseball player who has conducted evangelistic meetings in almost every part of the country, has succeeded in the collection of the saving of souls to a business-like basis. He has gone so far as to make an estimate of the cost of soul-saving in various cities. In Mr. Sunday's cost sheet Indianapolis souls come highest at $625 each.

New York City souls are quoted at $245, while in Boston they can be obtained for $150. Other quotations are Denver $23, Chicago $385 and New Orleans $73.

So far Mr. Sunday has made investigations, souls come cheapest in Atlanta, where they may be saved for $75 a head—if souls have heads.

"Billy" Sunday's figures have aroused much mystification and considerable adverse criticism. Atlantans complain because they are so cheap and Indianapolis people because they are so dear. The general impression seems to be that "Billy" Sunday acquired the percentage habit in his baseball days and hasn't been able to shake it off.—From "Success Magazine."

THE TRAINS.
The C. P. R. winter time table went into effect yesterday, the only change being that the Boston train in the morning arrives at 11:40 o'clock instead of 11:10. The I. C. R. schedule will not be changed for two weeks yet. This means that the Boston train will not connect with the Ocean Limited which leaves here at 11:20 o'clock for Moncton and points north to Montreal. The passengers for P. E. Island on the Boston will go to Paines Junction on the C. P. R. connecting with the Point du Chene train at that place.
