BIG WORLD EVENTS:
THEIR SIGNIFICANCE.
By William Banks.

A good deal is being said about the flood of paper money in Germany. It is not so generally known that France is turning out a good deal of the same kind of material. Within a two weeks' period recently no less than 1,000,000,000 paper francs were turned out by the government presses, and according to an official statement there is now thirty-eight and a half billions of such money in circulation. A few French journalists see the danger of this outpouring of paper. Their criticisms, however, are falling upon deaf ears, for France is in the midst of a general election campaign and the government is staking its fate on its attitude toward Germany in the Ruhr. There is consequently little opposition of a serious nature, critics of the government being obviously afraid that their patriotism may be questioned.

Conference should result in decisions which would help to bridge the gap in the relationships between Britain and France, the conference will have justified itself. The contention of General Smuts that the whole question of the occupation of the Ruhr and other matters should have been relegated to the League of Nations will find an echo in the hearts of many who believe that organization is destined to accomplish great things for permanent peace. It is certain however, that France would not have consented in her present mood, and the influence of the League would have suffered a greater blow perhaps than was the case in the refusal of Italy to recognize it in the dispute with Greece. While in the latter event the League ultimately accomplished a useful purpose and is entitled to some credit for such a settlement as was reported, it seems to be the consensus of opinion that much more effective means must be taken to impose the League's authority if it is not to be disregarded by the great powers. The Overseas Dominions through their representatives at the Imperial Conference are being brought more closely in touch with matters of European diplomacy than ever before. Their parliaments however must remain the deciding factors in any line of proposed policy. Each country represented naturally views European affairs from the angle of its own interests, yet all are more or less directly affected by what goes on in Europe.

Some cattle dealers in Britain have been expressing disappointment at the meagre results which have followed the lifting of the embargo against Canada. They had expected, it seems, a great influx of cattle from that country. Several causes have combined to militate against that. The most effective, according to recent dispatches, is the attitude of British officialdom which, by its insistence upon the absolute letter of the regulations under the recent legislation, are able, it is said, to maintain what almost amounts to an embargo. That this kind of thing cannot last does not make the situation any the less irritating to Canadian shippers. It is probable that the situation will adjust itself, through force of public opinion in Britain, which will not be inclined to allow its desires to be nullified by red tapeism.

Russia's recovery from the conditions brought about by the revolution and more recently by the crop failures in the wheat growing districts, is indicated in a period of prosperity and plenty. According to reports she will have a large exportable surplus of wheat this year and in fact is already exporting considerable quantities of grain. An interesting development in this connection is the statement that some eighteen hundred grain elevators are to be constructed in the south-eastern regions and that orders for a large number of these have been placed with Canadian contractors. There are intimations also that the railroad systems of Russia are to be rehabilitated on a large scale. It is probable that Canadians will also assist in this work. Sir Donald Mann of the famous Mackenzie & Mann organization, which constructed the Canadian Northern Railway, recently returned from Russia where he had been paying some attention to railway and other transportation facilities. He was reluctant as to immediate plans, but there was an intimation in his statements that he might be interested in some of the projects together with other well-known Canadians.

Lord Leverhulme, the famous British manufacturer, who is noted for his trenchant speeches and his trenchant views, has been declaring in some addresses delivered in Britain that the Motherland is on the eve of a period of great prosperity. He argued that the United States immigration and tariff laws are driving people and trade away from that country. The tariff will have a still stronger tendency to kill U. S. trade if it is increased as some Washington dispatches indicate that it is to be. United States trade returns with their falling off of exports may perhaps be construed as supporting Leverhulme's argument. This does not relieve the strain in other countries which are feeling the tariff just now. Canada, for instance, is threatened with a further increase in the tariff on wheat, while Newfoundland and other countries in the Empire are affected from time to time by new or increased duties on fish or other products. Still, the United States seems to be thoroughly imbued with the idea that a high tariff is requisite. Washington could not, therefore, object if other countries adopt the same view in a practical way. The tariff is becoming a very live issue in Britain, and it is not certain that free trade is to have a prolonged additional lease of life there.

A hint of the trend of opinion in Britain in trade matters is found in the offer of the Government to the Imperial Economic Conference, and if you want anything, or if you have anything to offer for sale, use our welcomed by the latter, of an extension of imperial preference to dried fruits, sugar and tobacco. This does not, of course, benefit all the Overseas Dominions and British colonies in equal degree. But as far as it goes it will be of considerable benefit to a number of them. As a sign of the times it is significant.

Following upon the successful float of the big refunding loan by the Canadian Government, over two hundred million dollars of subscriptions having been received, the Province of Ontario has arranged for a strong syndicate to handle a bond issue of forty millions. There is keen interest in this development and the manner in which subscriptions are being put in indicates that there is still plenty of money in Canada. It would be a fine thing for the British peoples everywhere if they could raise all their loans within their own boundaries or within the boundaries of the Empire. That has not been feasible during the past few years owing to the exchange rate being against London, because of the immense British war debt. Some of the Dominions too have suffered from similar causes. Recent occurrences have, however, shown them all to be possessed of tremendous recuperative powers, and practically able to care for themselves in any emergency. No better service could be rendered by any Dominion or colony than to prove its ability to get good rates for loans or renewals from its own people or elsewhere in the Empire. As a stabilizer of exchange and a guardian of trade such feats are always worth while. In addition the prestige thus accruing is of inestimable advertising value.

The Hot Suppers and Sales of Work, in connection with the Societies of the various churches, which are being held from week to week, are being well patronized. This is very encouraging to the promoters, who work so enthusiastically for the success of such functions.

To all our Readers

There is no doubt that a Type-setting Machine is an improvement on the old-fashioned equipment of a newspaper office, as it replaces the obsolete method of hand composition. The machine we purchased last fall was equipped with a Gasolene Burner. We have proven this to be very unsatisfactory. We are now negotiating for an Electric Metal Pot and need $300.00 for this additional equipment. The appeal we made for assistance last fall met with fair response, but it did not by any means come up to our expectations nor requirements. Hundreds of families residing in Bay Roberts and vicinity who could have responded to our appeal with benefit to themselves as well as to us, failed to do so. The result is that we have not been able to do that which we intended to do. Will you who read these lines help us now? Send along your subscription. This is YOUR PAPER as well as ours. A newspaper is the mouthpiece or organ of the entire community. It records the local happenings from week to week. It deals with the needs of the community. It gives information re employment and other matters. It deserves and should have the support of every family.

We are planning to add a special feature shortly, and later, if we can get sufficient encouragement, we plan to add some very special features.

WE WISH TO THANK

those who have so kindly responded during the past year, and for the many words of encouragement which have been expressed. Your patronage is very much appreciated. Keep abreast of other people and help the Guardian grow.
