INDIGNATION AT

DYNAMITE OUTRAGE.

Mono Sunday morning expressed the wish that every man and woman would attend the meeting. Things had come, he said, to a pretty pass in this town. The authorities had allowed a beautiful row of trees of a prominent citizen to be partially destroyed and still nothing was done about it; a can of powder was allowed to explode in an attempt to blow up a man's barn, and struths of philosophy."

At the close of the p resident's address Prof. Macaughlin took up Bible study. His subject for this morning as "God in Creation." He opened by reading from the first chapter of John, "Some people," said Prof. Maclaughlin, hold that God only created a part of the world. I read a book a short time ago in which some ingenious person endeavors to prove that the devil causes the earthquakes and sends the diseases to mankind. This, however, is not in harmony with any of the truths of philosophy." attempt to blow up a man's barn, and still nothing was done, and now another and infinitely worse outrage is committed and days are allowed to pass and still nothing done about it.
