Moving Pictures in All Schools Soon

John Collier Tells How Wonderful Results May be Achieved by Making Study Real.

New York, N. Y., Feb. 23.—"Moving pictures will be used generally in the schoolroom within two years," says John Collier, secretary of the board of college professors and authors, which is known as the national board of censorship for the moving picture companies.

They will be a part of the school system, like books, and they will be used also to afford evening entertainment for the parents and thus interest them in school work.

"I cannot think of any study in grade schools or colleges that cannot be taught by moving pictures. Almost any arithmetic problem, for instance, can be thrown on a screen in some form or other.

"Botany may be taught by beautiful pictures, now that colored photography has been applied to moving pictures. I have seen a colored moving picture which showed the planting of seed and the growth and development of a plant, its leaves and its beautiful flowers, all within the space of 10 minutes. Teaching botany in this way is almost an improvement on going into the fields.

"Biology and many other sciences may be taught by the pictures. One of the latest feats of the moving picture experts has been to photograph the moving wings of an insect—2,000 motions a second. These pictures can be run slowly so that the children may see just exactly how an insect flies.

"In natural history the children may witness sights that they never could see in the field—pictures taken with great care and patience, of moths and birds feeding their young, wild animals in their haunts, moving about as in real life, eating, sleeping, living according to their natures.

"Vivid interest can be given to history by showing on the screen the actual representations of great historical events.

"Sunday schools, before long, will be using moving pictures to tell Biblical stories to their pupils—a thousand times more effective and impressive than the charts now in use.

"In literature, scenes from the works of great authors might be thrown on the screen. In time, as the system gains a foothold, the moving picture of the author himself might be shown, long after his death, thus making himself and his work a living reality in the minds of the pupils.

"The beauties of teaching geography by moving pictures are obvious. The children can be taken on real tours of the world.

"The public library or a special school library will probably have charge of the films. Each city will have a constantly growing library of moving pictures—a circulating library through which the pictures will be distributed to the schools."

MACKINTOSH'S WEEKLY LETTER

St. John, N. B., Feb. 25.—The principal feature of interest during the past week was the handing down of the railway freight rate decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission. In their finding of the commission was entirely adverse to the railways. The Eastern railroads were turned down.

THE QUEEN'S

Toronto, the Queen City of Canada, is the important business and tourist centre of the Dominion. Its magnificent handsome churches, artistic public buildings, imposing offices, public drives, parks and gardens are the admiration of many thousands of visitors throughout the year. One of the best hotels in Canada is located here, the old established "Queen's," a hostelry that is especially popular with all discriminating people standing in its own beautiful and extensive grounds. It has an air of quiet and refinement, and appeals strongly to the home lover. Its location is so reaching, and many remember with a pleasure the hours spent within its hospitable walls.

"The Queen's" is operated on the American and European Plan. The rates being: Rooms without Bath (American Plan) $3.00 per day. Rooms with Bath (American Plan) $3.50 per day. Rooms (European Plan) $1.50 per day up.

Virginia Carolina Chemical Co. stock was listed in Paris this last week giving it a broader market. It has been very strong and should be a good purchase on reasonable declines. Sloss-Sheridan also should be a buy on any decided break. With improved conditions in the pig iron industry this stock should resume its dividend within the next half year when we would expect to see it sell much in advance of what it is now selling at. The immediate future of the New York market will be controlled by the construction of the railroads placed upon the decision handed down last week. If they consider that they cannot continue to pay dividends without reduction in wages, maintenance and improvements, it will mean strikes amongst the employees or sickness in business in the steel industry. On the other hand, if they think the decision is fair and that they are in a position to earn the present dividends and continue improvements then we will probably see a rise in the market unless the Supreme Court hands down adverse decision next week in the True case when we would expect to see a further decline.

The Cotton Market. The cotton market has been dull and steady during the past week, prices ranging in the vicinity of fourteen cents. The Scott Bill proposal may cause a decline in cotton at any time otherwise it should be a trading market at present. The intosight fig-

LONDON PORT IMPROVEMENT

$70,000,000 Will be Expended in Big Scheme to Provide for Mauretania and Ships for 30 Years.

London, Feb. 23.—Rip Van Winkle has been unconsciously undervalued from time to time by the officials of various English institutions, but especially by the Port of London authorities. Now they have awakened from their long sleep with the determination to make good the accumulated arrears of development occasioned by 25 years stagnation.

As outlined by Lord Devenport the great improvement scheme for the Port of London, costing $20,000,000, will bring into being eventually several advantages to travelers between America and England. The whole scheme will run into over $70,000,000 but the port officials do not intend to bite off more than they can chew at one time.

Remove Delay. At present the difficulties in the way of passengers embarking from London by steamer are considerable, mostly through imperfect arrangements and delays occasioned by other ships getting in the way. It is the object of the authority which Lord Devenport presides to do away with that delay, and to enable people in London to go down to Tilbury docks and step on board with comfort and in the certain knowledge of a punctual departure.

There is no hope or intention of trying to make the Port of London compete with Liverpool as an express route to America. Still, there are many people in the metropolis who would prefer to travel to America from London in six days rather than take the railroad journey to Liverpool and do the voyage in four and a half days, especially if an increased allowance of baggage was made to them.

The ambition of the port of London authority is to provide accommodation, not only for a Mauretania, but for any ship that may be constructed within the next thirty years. To times, the system gains a foothold, the moving picture of the author himself might be shown, long after his death, thus making himself and his work a living reality in the minds of the pupils.

The present restricted accommodation in the Thames allows only of ships of a limited size, and the first improvement to be taken consists in increasing the port's accommodation in this respect.

River Scenery. The river scenery as you go down the Thames to Greenwich from Charing Cross pier still looks much the same as when Charles Dickens pictured Rogue Riderhood plying his shabby trade on its sluggish stream. Old houses, old taverns, old wharves, worn steps by the water edge, and at this time of year a perpetual pall of mist over the light chocolate colored tide—touched with flecks of dull gold when the sunlight occasionally glints through the murky sky—are the salient aspects of the river. Barges laden with timber towed by puffing tugs, tramp steamers outpacing the continental ports, and a few small sailing vessels fill out the picture as you pass down the river through the Tower bridge.

ures during the week were 14,211 against 12,999 last year and the total intosight to date is 10,659,327 against 8,530,000 last year. The visible American supply is 5,382,217 against 4,259,412 showing a surplus supply of about 550,000 more than last year. The wheat market has been dull on the news of favorable weather for the winter wheat belt, also an account of more liberal offerings from Australia, India, Argentina as well as Russia. Corn and oats has shown very little or no improvement also.

The Montreal market has been influenced to a certain extent by New York, however prices have been well maintained. R. & O. continues in its advance on the increase of dividend and is selling in the vicinity of 10 1/2 at the close today. There was weakness in Rio in the middle of the week caused by the unconfirmed rumor from London to the effect that the company anticipated putting on an issue of second mortgage bonds on the property. R. P. R. again was very strong and sold on Saturday up to 215. Soss also maintained its advance. Scotia seems to have lost the market interest after declaration of dividend. There has been little or no change in the Cobalt stocks during the week.
