

PLENTY FOLLOWS ADVANCING ARMY OF GEN. WRANGEL

Live Stock and Produce Suddenly Appear When Anti-Bolshevik Forces Enter.

By B. F. KOSKOTH.
(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger.)
Alexandrovsk, Southern Russia, Oct. 21.—Pushing on independently, ahead of General Wrangel's headquarters, in an America Red Cross car with Major Ryden, chief of the South Russian unit of the American Red Cross, your correspondent was the first newspaperman to reach Alexandrovsk after its evacuation by the Bolsheviks only three days before.

The opposite bank of the Dnieper was still held by the Reds and the Bolsheviks "big Bertha" in reality a 6-inch gun, for everything is on a small scale in this belated war—dropped shells on the railroad depot and all around the city hall where General Plehve, commanding the first corps, and his staff are quartered. One shell exploded just outside the American car whose windows were shattered by its jagged fragments.

As yet its military interest this independent expedition into territory newly delivered after many months of Red misrule was highly instructive. Order and organization followed closely in the wake of General Wrangel's army as the crusaders' forces advanced. In Alexandrovsk the street cleaners were already at work sweeping thoroughfares, still under Bolshevik gunfire, free of the filth and refuse accumulated during the Red occupation.

Food is plentiful.

The markets were plentifully supplied with fresh-pigs, poultry and fruit. The Red regime was a city of starvation. The market stands were empty of food, cattle and poultry vanished mysteriously, and no meat was obtainable except that brought in by the Bolshevik authorities to the inhabitants divided into three classes—the "proletariat" received three times as much as the "bourgeoisie."

The three agricultural districts of Russia are thus transformed into economic void under the Red regime because of requisitioning and robbery. Induce peasants to hide their livestock, and the Bolshevik government's policy of fixing prices kills all trade and commerce, encouraging only fraudulent speculation. The Bolshevik economic legislation spreads famine everywhere, even more surely than the depredations of the Red army, and it is only when General Wrangel's "bourgeois" forces appear on the scene that the hidden wealth of this rich land is once more surprisingly revealed.

Prisoners' Farewell Messages.
In one of Alexandrovsk's main thoroughfares there stands a small two-story brick building. Its windows heavily barred with iron grating. Here the "Cherovitchanka"—extraordinary commission—held its macabre sessions with Lenin's word was law in Alexandrovsk. One bare dirty room was used as a prison. Its walls are covered with inscriptions made by prisoners awaiting trial or execution—most often in Russian.

"Say goodbye for me to my wife, Marie Pederson, living at Kharkov," reads one hasty scrawl. "Tell my brother, Peter Alexandrovich, I pray he may take care of my little children," writes another victim. "I have done nothing, yet I must die, for they will not listen," protests a third.

They are all in the same vein, these tragic last words—recommendations to relatives, farewells to wives, sweethearts and friends; pious appeals for divine mercy.

During the ten months of Red rule in Alexandrovsk, a city of but 40,000, more than 3,000 persons were executed by order of the extraordinary commission. The executions took place until the last days before the arrival of General Wrangel's troops—conclusive proof that all the Bolshevik assertions that the reign of terror has ceased are false.

Alexandrovsk is held by the Marko division, whose commander, General Trezakov, received the unexpected American visitors at his headquarters in a little village situated opposite the wooded island which here divides the waters of the Dnieper, and from which his troops had driven the Reds a few days before.

Typical of Wrangel's Men.

A slender, active man, not over forty, speaking no language but Russian and thereby revealing his lowly origin, General Trezakov is typical of the efficient, energetic young men whom General Wrangel has promoted to lead his fighting divisions. He had just returned from a nocturnal tour of inspection among the outposts on the island in the Dnieper, and the Reds had fired on him and wounded his horse.

"It vexes me, for he is a thoroughbred," he said simply. Some maps spread out on a table and a telephone alone marked the low-ceilinged bedroom in the little farmhouse as a division commander's office.

The Spartan simplicity of new Russia's warriors under the Wrangel regime is splendid. So is their devotion to duty and hard work. Both form a wonderful contrast to the conditions which existed under Czar Nicholas, and even under General Denikin. It really looks as if out of the stress of civil war a new race of Russians is being evolved in Baron Wrangel's army—a race of efficient, hard-working, democratic men, almost American in their strict attention to the business at hand.

Twenty-four hours later General Trezakov's troops threw a bridge from the island to the right bank of the Dnieper and crossed the stream under fire, taking the Reds completely by surprise and dislodging them from their positions. Now the Bolsheviks "big Bertha" can no longer shell the American Red Cross camp in Alexandrovsk.

Occasionally the office seeks the sun, but the majority are kept busy.

SAVED CHILD FROM DEATH IN SEWER

New York Fireman Crawled Along Underground Pipe to Rescue Girl.

New York, Oct. 21.—Crawling more than eighty-five feet on his hands and knees in two feet of dirty sewer water, fireman Frank Ely, of hook and ladder company No. 11, rescued Katie Heming, two and a half years old, of 123 St. Mark's Place today, when the girl had been lost in the sewer for half an hour, following her disappearance from Tompkins Square Park. Seventh Avenue and Avenue B, where she had been playing with her brother, Joseph.

The girl was with her mother and grandmother in the park and crawled under a wire fence in the park to a manhole, which had been uncovered by boys of the neighborhood. She fell into the hole and landed in two feet of water. Becoming confused, she started to walk and had crawled about eighty-five feet before panic overtook her.

Ladette first noticed her disappearance and notified his mother, that Katie had fallen into the sewer.

Park Foreman Hero.
Mrs. Pauline Heming, mother of the girl, summoned a man named Lawrence, who is foreman of the park department force stationed there, who in turn called Police Sergeant Mulholland and Police Officer Hill of the East Fifth street station. Sergeant Mulholland telephoned for the fire company, and when he returned was forced to call for help to keep the frantic women back from the sewer, near the East River.

He was lionized when he brought the girl to the surface.

GERMAN THREAT TO ATTACK U. S. SHIP AT KIEL

Still State of War Between Two Nations Destroyer Captain is Told.

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger.)
Berlin, Oct. 21.—Although an armistice prevails between Germany and the United States which are formally still at war, the commander of the American Destroyer Broome was recently surprised to find that part of the German Navy still considers the period of actual hostilities unexpired. He was served with a threat that he would be fired on if he anchored in Kiel harbor.

The Broome transferred the Kiel Canal en route to the Baltic and received wireless orders at Kiel to await there the arrival of an American cruiser. She applied for a mooring berth but instead was notified by the German Admiral in command of the port that as the United States was still at war with Germany, the Broome must depart immediately or she would be fired on.

Talked Very Emphatically.
The destroyer commander went ashore under escort to the Admiral's headquarters where in language understood to have been more forcible than diplomatic, he informed the Admiral that he was under orders of his superiors to remain at Kiel and remain he would even if his ship were blown out of the water.

The Admiral levelled his threat, but evidently thought better thereof for the Broome remained in the harbor and the Battle of Kiel passed with nothing more serious than diplomatic broadsides.

Alexandrovsk is held by the Marko division, whose commander, General Trezakov, received the unexpected American visitors at his headquarters in a little village situated opposite the wooded island which here divides the waters of the Dnieper, and from which his troops had driven the Reds a few days before.

Children Cry for Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has proven.

What is CASTORIA?
Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Dropper and Soothing Syrup. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulence, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. GAVE BEEF TEA TO MACSWINEY WHILE HE SLEPT

Lord Mayor Was Very Wrathful When He Tasted Cordial After He Wakened.

London, Oct. 21.—Official confirmation came from two sources this morning of the reports that Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork had been fed during a period of unconsciousness.

The bulletin of the Irish Surrender League, dealing with the condition of the lord mayor on the 16th day of his hunger strike in Brixton prison, announced that the prison doctors had forced meat juice into MacSwiney's mouth during a fit of delirium which the prisoner suffered last night.

From the Government side, it was stated that when the mayor is unconscious, he started to walk and had crawled about eighty-five feet before panic overtook her.

"Tricked" Says MacSwiney.
The League's account of the feeding said that the lord mayor, upon regaining consciousness detected the taste of the meat juice and said to a sister near him: "They tricked me, and I did not know it."

Lapsing into unconsciousness again, the lord mayor, waved his arm and said: "Take it away." MacSwiney was delirious during virtually all last night, the League bulletin declared, the delirium for the greater part of the time taking a violent form.

The bulletin concludes: "The most just given the lord mayor during his delirium on the 16th day of his fast was the first nourishment which he passed his lips since his arrest on August 12."

Drank of Own Will.
In the House today, Edward Shortt, the Home Secretary, said in answer to a question that the condition of the lord mayor was very serious. Until yesterday, added the Home Secretary, the doctors had given the lord mayor only water, but yesterday, during a period of unconsciousness, they gave him a little liquid food.

Mr. Shortt was asked whether this meant that the doctors were forcibly feeding the lord mayor. He replied that in this case forcible feeding consisted in holding the cup to his lips. The swallowing, he said, was voluntary.

Answering another question, Mr. Shortt said it was not true that evidence had recently come to light showing that nourishment had been administered on other occasions.

NIGHT IN MAUSOLEUM SINN FEIN PENALTY

Belfast, Ireland Oct. 21.—And example of means used to enforce Sinn Fein discipline has been reported by Dublin Castle. A man had refused to pay a sum awarded against him by a republican court. He was kidnapped, taken to a churchyard, and given a lighted candle and locked in a large vault, where he was told: "By the time the candle is burned out you may decide to change your mind." The kidnappers returned a day later, by which time the candle had been long extinguished, leaving the prisoner alone in the dark with five coffins. Under threats that the treatment would be repeated, the fine was paid.

PASSERS-BY HURT IN FEUDIST FIGHT

Caught in Crossfire of Duel—Church Robbed While Choir Was Singing.

New York, October 21.—Two shootings in widely separated parts of the city caused injury to four persons. Several saloon robberies were reported to the police and four arrests were made. While the choir in Christ Church, at Broadway and Seventy-first street, was singing an anthem last night a thief entered the vestry room and stole furs and cash aggregating $200.

Joseph Pozzo, 30 years old, a clerk, of 218 East 138th street, was shot in the right thigh and Mrs. Magdalena Marcel, 40 years old, of 2188 Second Avenue, was shot also in the right thigh early in the evening when they were caught in the cross fire of two Birmen feudists who exchanged shots in front of a building at 18th street and Second Avenue. The duelists, who emerged from a group of men engaged in a fight fled when the two passers-by fell to the sidewalk.

The shots were heard a block away by Patrolmen Crane, Ryan and McLaughlin, of the East 104th street station, who ran to the place in time to see the shooting. Three men were caught, and taken to the East 104th street police station, where two, who said they were Paul Hana, son, of 432 East Seventy-ninth street, and Joseph Comarato, were held on charges of felonious assault.

A revolver which William Murray, 50 years old, a wealthy business man of Richmond Hill, carried to protect himself, and a large sum of money he carried, was wrested from him today by a hold-up man. The

GENERAL LUDENDORFF A PRIVATE SOLDIER

Berlin, Oct. 21.—General Erich Ludendorff, Germany's noted military strategist, and for two years practically the Commander-in-Chief of more than seven million officers and men composing Germany's army, is now a private in the Bavarian Home Guard. General Ludendorff, recently moved from Berlin to one of the suburbs of Munich, where he applied for admission as a private in the local company of the home guard and was accepted. Should disorders break out, the former head of the German army may have to shoulder a rifle and patrol the streets side by side with an ordinary householder.

EXPLOSION KILLED 400 CHINESE MINERS

Peking, Oct. 21.—An explosion and fire in the Long-Shan coal mine in China province killed upwards of 400 Chinese laborers on Thursday last, but news of the accident reached here only today. There were 119 survivors. An accurate accounting of the number of men employed in the mine is not available, but an official report by the mining company places the dead at 422. The explosion occurred in next to the lowest level, smoke causing most of the deaths.

IMPERIAL Premier

WINTER GASOLINE

WHEN you start your car those cold days you will appreciate the low boiling points of Imperial Premier Gasoline—those low boiling points make starting easy.

When you check up your mileage you will recognize the value of the heavier fractions in Imperial Premier Gasoline—these supply the power economy demands, they mean More Miles Per Gallon.

If Imperial Premier were a blended gasoline, its combination of high boiling points and low boiling points might mean nothing. But Imperial Premier is a straight distilled gasoline.

From its lowest boiling point to its highest boiling point its chain of power is continuous and unbroken.

The big buyers of gasoline, the buyers who know most about gasoline, those who decide only after careful tests, use Imperial Premier Gasoline exclusively because they have convinced themselves that there is no better gasoline made.

A gravity test means absolutely nothing. You may not care what crudes are used or how your gasoline is refined. What you motorists do want is gasoline that will give you good service and good mileage during the winter. This is what we promise you in Imperial Premier Gasoline.

The more you find out about gasoline, the surer you will be that it is impossible to buy at any price a better gasoline than Imperial Premier Gasoline.

Disagreement Montreal

Some Sporting Editor
McTigue-Bloomfield
Was a Draw.

Montreal, Oct. 21.—Hardly the Montreal sporting editor on the night last night but McTigue and Jack Bloomfield credits McTigue with printing the British champion. The Star argues that a fighter could have knocked out a boxer if he had not. The Herald gives the story a different point of view, saying that the boxer in their own department was a rugged fighter, a field as a beautiful fighter, and Le Devour also said he would be the victor. The editor of this paper says that man is a sportsman in every word of the word and never evened an infraction of the Presso contends, however. There is not embarrassed by delicate scruples.
