A. Chipman Smith,
Dear Sir.—I have great pleasure in stating that I put every confidence in your Diamona Rheumatic Cure. I have suffered for the last two years with Rheumatic Pains, during which time I have had the advice of some of the miss prominent medical men in the Province, but experienced no relief, until I tried the I lamond Rheumatic Cure. I have now taken three butles, and I feel greatly improved, and now am confident of a permanent cure.

Yours truly,
James O'Brien. Life by the Camp Fire Henry Varley, the English revivalist, Butter preached in Barnum's Hippodrome, New York, last Sunday, to an audience of 10,000 persons, most of whom were from the lower classes. The newspapers have severely criticised his style of preaching, and in his sermon he said the New York press was ungodly and possessed of the devil. He is remarkably successful in converting the women and children who hear him. The Hippodrome, now vacated by Barnum's show, will be used for religious meetings. Varley goes to Boston this week. Forty-three city clergymen have agreed to join with him in an effort to awaken a tremendous revival of religion, and a lay Christian has contributed $5,000 to pay the expenses.

Invisible Dress Elevators! ing to this alleged story by Pemberton, he called at the house with the intention The Dress can be raised to any required neight and lowered in an instant in crossing treets, and for the ball room this article is inlisensable. They have only to be seen to be of stealing something, being out of money, but with no intention of perpetrating the horrid crime. On reaching the cellar he demended the ring from Mrs. Bingham. These being souvenirs of her husband, she refused and attempted to run. Pemberton caught her, but with superhuman strength she broke away and got part way up the stairs when he pulled her back by the dress. She screamed, and intending only to stifle her cries, but not to kill her, he filled her mouth with gravel and dirt, and having then no thought of murder, but only to escape from the house without detection. Throwing her down and placing one knee on her body and another on one arm he tore the rings from her other hand and ran away, thinking she would recover herself shortly. This explains his carclessness in selling the rings so soon, not suspecting his victim was really dead. He proposes therefore to plead manslaughter or a minor degree of murder and will take any sentence less than hanging. This extraordinary communication is vouched for by the friends of Rev. Mr. Bingham.
