

a collegiate education at a cost commensurate with the means of their parents. Ordinarily, these means are not superabundant, and hence the terms are as low as is compatible with the outlay essential to the well-being and comfort of the student. By consulting the statement of terms, elsewhere given, parents will find that the expense of maintaining their sons here is very little, if at all greater, than that incurred by providing for them at home.

Owing to the retired location of the Institution, the incidental expenses are very few, and thus a considerable item of college expenses is practically avoided.

As explanatory of the lowness of our charges, it may be useful to state that our Professors receive no salaries. They are Religious, who, living in voluntary poverty, have devoted their lives to the cause of education.

The Scholastic Year, Examinations, Etc.

The Scholastic Year begins about the first of September, and closes in the latter part of June.

The year is divided into two sessions, of five months each. An examination of all classes is held at the end of each session.

While students are admitted at any time during the year, they will best serve their own interests by entering at the beginning of a session, either the first week of September or the first week of February.

Students authorized by their parents or guardians to spend the Christmas week at home, may leave the college on Dec. 23rd. The regular routine of class work is resumed on Jan. 2nd. Students absent after that date forfeit their claims to all honor-awards and premiums. There is no vacation at Easter.

The attention of parents is particularly called to the urgent necessity of their sons' prompt return at the expiration of the annual holidays. Absence of a week or ten days at the
