A FIGHTING MINISTER.-Henry Ward Beecher goes in strong for fighting the rebels. Last Sunday, after the services were concluded, Mr. Beecher said that of the Ply outh society, one hundred and thirty-five had gone and were about going to take part Amongst which will be found a Splendid the Patent for the in the war. He did not know before, how Variety of Ladies' and Gentlemen's well he had preached. They were "living epistles," and he was not ashamed that letters so written should be sent to Virginia .-It was the duty of his children to take care of its sons and their families. He had already distributed many of Colt's revolvers. He did not like the manufacturer, who had it was not safe for any one to go through and Fancy Goods, suitable for the season; Baltimore without a persuader in his pocket. The authorities would supply the soldiers with clothing and muskets; the church must give them revolvers. A collection amounting to $2,565 was then raised for the equapment of volunteers, and for the care of the sick and wounded.
