consistently shown a pro-central Canada bias," Lougheed charged, "and we are out to break that bias."

Lougheed said his government would begin campaigning for Alberta separation and would possibly hold a referendum on the issue within a year. He said his government would also begin programs which could easily be continued if Alberta decided to separate from the rest of Canada.

He said some of those programs might include paramilitary work for young men opening up Alberta's northern wilderness areas. He hinted such work might become compulsory for young men following high school.

Lougheed added that he had already begun an Alberta provincial police force under the direction of Solicitor-General Roy Farran, who will lead the first detachment of the APP in a commando-attack on a suspected Israeli stronghold in southern Calgary.

Premier Lougheed concluded the press conference with rendition of "Alberta, Alberta above all others," which he says is intended to be the national anthem should Alberta decide to become a sovereign state.

two lecture theatres.

Another approach will be to use television monitors to make one instructor available in many classrooms. In this way, the entire second floor of Humanities Centre will be converted into one classroom for English 200.

According to the senior official, the most promising approach so far is to use large public buildings. He said negotiations have begun for the use of the Edmonton Coliseum for all Education courses, allowing students to be registered, processed and given their degrees in two weeks.
