My dear Willie:

Your loving letters to us all which came this morning, have given a great deal of pleasure. The little trifles we sent were not anything except an expression of love. I was sorry the little mirror was not better. I sent for it some time ago, they were sold out but around me, they would have it here in lots of time for Christmas and it didn't arrive till Thursday - too late to exchange it. However it will do under however for any part of the house & some other time I will pick up a more suitable one. I am so glad you value the Bible John sent. To me, it seemed most interesting, but we decided that no one would appreciate it as you would. I think it was Aunt Ely's for I have a dim idea that it was among her things when she lived on Biblesy St. & she gave me anything worth keeping. It was with some old books which I have no impression since we came to Barrie & John was looking for anything which might be of interest to Mr. Hood, when he came across it. Mr. Hood collects rare books & all
