Scotch Home Rule.

Parliament to be Held in Edinburgh Composed of 114 Members.

The much talked of Home Rule Bill for Scotland, for which Sir Henry Dalglish stands sponsor, has at last been put into definite form. It is proposed that there shall be a Parliament in Edinburgh composed of 114 members, with an Executive responsible to it. The committee promoting the measure regard the scheme as part of a federal system, and it is not proposed to change the present representation at Westminster. It will be interesting to learn how the two sets of representatives are to be elected.

With regard to finances a provisional arrangement is proposed whereby all the existing taxes would be paid into a separate Scotch Exchequer and the contribution to the Imperial Exchequer would be upon the basis of the recent contributions of Scotland to the Imperial services. What remains would go to local services, and for these the Scotch Parliament would have the power to impose taxation, but no power would be conferred to touch either customs or excise. It will be no doubt an interesting speculation whether this Scotch Home Rule Bill may be taken as a forecast of the scheme for Ireland to which the Government have pledged themselves.

Pockets in Their Hats.

Parisian Milliners Have Solved Woman's Big Problem.

London, Sept. 7.—Amusement was caused in a Paris tea room recently when a smart woman calmly put her hand up to her elaborate trimmed hat and from the midst of the lace and flowers decorating it, drew out a small purse and paid her bill. Later she took a handkerchief and a cigarette case also from the recess of her hat. The woman was wearing one of the new hats with pockets which threaten to become popular enough to oust the handbag. All its various sizes and styles from feminine favor. The outlook is very dark for the handbag unless she can acquire sufficient knowledge of hat trimming to know in just what pocket to put the pocket she wants to use is located.

The Paris milliner is placing little receptacles in all her autumn creations. A large hat will have as many as three pockets, while smaller ones will be equipped in proportion. Of course the careful woman will not endanger the correct pose of her headgear by carrying weighty articles in its side pockets, but handkerchiefs, stamp boxes, tiny gold purses, cigarette cases and keys can quite comfortably nestle in hat pockets, say the makers of the latest novelties.

Food Riots at Vienna.

Special to Evening Telegram.

VIENNA, Sept. 17.—A critical situation has arisen at Vienna, owing primarily to the high prices of the necessities of life. There were riots yesterday in which many were killed and wounded, the troops having fired on the mob, which had erected barricades in the streets. Following the demonstration yesterday afternoon for the purpose of protesting against the high price of food, it became necessary to call on troops to disperse rioters, fifty of whom were wounded.

Desperate Deed of Murderer.

Shot 5 Persons, Then Suicided.

Berlin, Sept. 9.—That police dogs are showing their value in Germany is shown by a story received from Frankfurt-on-Main of the ghastly murder of a family of five persons; of the escape for the time being of the murderer, and the eventual tracking down and discovery of his body. The murders were carried out with extraordinary coolness and resolution. Wilhelm Gunderloch, a well-to-do yeoman farmer, married the daughter of a farmer named Eberhard, living in the village of Rendel Hesse. After wasting his patrimony of several thousand pounds Gunderloch sold his farm and went to London eighteen months ago, abandoning his wife and two children, who went to live with Eberhard. Before leaving Gunderloch threatened to murder his wife's family. Returning to Germany last week, he armed himself with a double-barreled gun, and went to the farm of his wife's father, where he hid until his father-in-law came out to feed his cows. Gunderloch met and shot him dead, and then, entering the house, went from bedroom to bedroom, shooting dead his mother-in-law and sister-in-law in bed. The murderer's brother-in-law bolted and had reached the street when he was brought down by a well-aimed shot. Gunderloch's wife was the last victim. She heard the shots and made a desperate effort to reach the neighborhood house through the roof. She had torn away twenty tiles when her husband entered the bedroom and shot her as she hung half out of the window. Five years ago, Gunderloch shot his own brother dead, but was acquitted on the ground that he had acted in self-defense. The terrible deed committed, the murderer made off, evidently with a view of escaping from the district. But this was not to be. Directly the ghastly slaughter was discovered

Terrorized by Fires.

Nelson, B.C., Sept. 5.—Terrorized by the succession of incendiary fires which the small force of city police have been unable to prevent, a mass meeting of citizens presided over by the Mayor, has telegraphed Attorney-General W. J. Bowser, entreating him to send the Provincial Police and a staff of detectives to take the matter in hand.

The whole city is under a reign of terror now that the incendiary is turning his attention from the tenderloin to the rest of the city. Stationed every block a watchman is stationed, on the lookout for the miscreant who is exhibiting the greatest cunning in his outrages. Many citizens are sitting up guarding property with revolvers and rifles.

Starting on August 17, the first seven fires were in the tenderloin district. Then the criminal attacked the fire hall, the Provincial jail and the city's two biggest lumber yards. On Friday the brewery went up in smoke, the loss being $50,000. Late last night the fire-bug made another attempt to destroy the Yale-Columbia yards in which many million feet of manufactured lumber is stored awaiting shipment to the prairies.

The fire, which was started in the planer was carefully laid, though the watchman had visited the building only a few minutes before. An old straw hat and pieces of kindling were placed under a stack of boards and used to start the blaze. The watchman made the discovery in time to prevent serious damage.

Fight at an Operation.

Exciting Struggle With a Mad Surgeon.

Paris, Sept. 1.—The Petit Journal tells the following extraordinary story:—

While performing an operation on a patient in a private nursing home at Tchia, the capital of Transbaikalia, Siberia, a surgeon suddenly went mad and had to be forcibly restrained from killing his patient.

The operation was for appendicitis, and the surgeon's assistants were surprised to hear their chief making jokes. Chloroform was, however, properly administered to the patient, and the surgeon made the first incisions in the orthodox manner. Suddenly, the surgeon turned round to his assistants and smilingly said, "The work is really very silly. We had much better finish the patient off with a stroke of the knife."

Realizing that he had to deal with a lunatic, one of the assistants placed himself between the patient and the surgeon. The latter became enraged, and soon the two men were engaged in an exciting struggle for possession of the surgeon's knife. Meanwhile the second assistant quietly proceeded with the operation.

A nurse who had been in the room came back with some policemen, who succeeded in taking the surgeon to a lunatic asylum. The operation proved successful, and the patient is reported to be convalescent.

Carrots Four Feet Long

Duke of Portland's Giant Vegetables.

Every gardener, large or small, who wants to know the best varieties of vegetables or the best way to grow them may tap the very latest information by writing to the secretary of the National Vegetable Society, Harrow View, Wealdstone, Harrow.

This new and excellent organization yesterday showed that the Horticultural Hall, Westminster, the astonishing perfection of which vegetable culture is possible, even in such a season as this. The leading exponent is the Duke of Portland. A worthy duel for the championship in the art of vegetable growing, in which specialists take great interest, has been some years in progress between the Duke of Portland, whose gardener is Mr. Gibson, and Mr. Vicary Gibbs, whose gardener is Mr. Beckett. The two stand out supreme; and yesterday each surprised himself, and avoided direct competition.

It was generally agreed by the specialists that the Duke of Portland's exhibit has never been equalled. The carrots were 4 ft. long at least and as straight and smooth and regular in taper as if they had been cast; the beans a foot long; the tomatoes as big as cricket balls, and all spotless. Gold medals were won by Messrs. Sutton and Messrs. Barr for the collection of vegetables, and by Messrs. Dobbies for potatoes, which were as remarkable as anything in the show.

COUSIN'S REMINISCENCES.

Speaking at the annual distribution of prizes to evening school students at Stone (Stafes) yesterday, Mr. F. E. Kitchener, J.P., of Oulton Old Hall, Stone, chairman of Staffordshire Education Committee, recalled some interesting incidents of the youth and early manhood of Lord Kitchener, his cousin.

Emphasizing the fact that every branch of learning was of value, Mr. Kitchener referred to Lord Kitchener's boyhood. He had, he said, something to do with his cousin's early education, which was really very good at that time, in England.

Lord Kitchener was then a tall overgrown lad, nearly 6 ft. 10 in. in height. He managed somehow to scramble into a Woolwich. He was not high in the lists, and no one thought about him. After leaving Woolwich he got his commission in the Engineers, but still no one thought much about him. Lord Kitchener got his first "shove up" in the world when he was appointed on the Palestine Survey. Here he learnt how to manage native soldiers and acquired a great deal of that command over men which distinguished him to-day. He obtained his first appointment because he knew how to photograph. At that time someone was wanted to go to Palestine and take photographs, and it was this knowledge that gave Lord Kitchener the "lift up."—Daily Mail, Sept. 7.

Police Court News.

In the Police Court today 7 drunks were released after depositing $1 each. The case of the police against Mr. Jno. Doyle, for the alleged larceny of a quantity of what is known as dross, or old useless material which is generally thrown on the dump by the Postal Department, for which Mr. Doyle has worked many years and for whom he has acted the part of a faithful and painstaking employee. The value of the material in this instance was something over $5.00. The evidence of Supt. Stott and other witnesses, including the accused himself was taken and it went to show that the material has always been thrown away and was considered to be of little or no value to the Department. Mr. Higgins who pleaded the cause of the accused showed conclusively that Mr. Doyle took and sold the material to a junk dealer looking at the transaction as that of a vendue of the employees and that he had no dishonest intent in acting as he did. He believed that when the material was thrown out others could have it and sell it and he saw no reason why he should not do so. Judge Knight who presided to-day dismissed the case. The many who know of the matter and knew that Mr. Doyle is a man of good character and comes from a good old St. John's family, expressed their satisfaction at the outcome of the trial.

PARIS, To-day.—

The Foreign Office is without further information, regarding the negotiations on the Moroccan controversy, and awaits Mr. Cambon's detailed report of his conference, with the German minister. Whatever Germany's reply may be, it is affirmed that the French Government, backed by the undivided support of the nation, has absolutely resolved to maintain its position. The optimism displayed by the German papers continued to be received here with scepticism.
