Camel ia," or "Miss Antelope," and that she was eighteen or otherwise on her last birty day.

She counsels you to seize that tiny lump of yellow condiment with your chopsticks, to drop it in the soy, to stir up and flavor these with the pink flakes of salmon, and you get on famously, watched by her with the warmest personal interest.

Now and again she shuffles forward on her small knees so fill your cup or to rearrange the confusion into which your little bowls and platters have somehow fallen, always with a consummate grace, modesty and good breeding. With the condiments her little fingers have mixed, the uncooked trout is so good that you cease presently to feel like a voracious seal, and wonder if it be not wrong, after all, to boil or fry anything.

Environed by all these tiny dishes, and lightly fluttering from one to another, you begin at last to be conscious of having dined attraordinally well. So you say, "Mo yoroshii," (It is enough), and the service relapses a little for mysic and denoing Some Curious Truths.

There are a number of societies in the world that bear strange names, but probably one of the most curious was a club iounded in 1735 by an English actor. It was salled "The Sublime Society of Beefsteaks," and had among its members the Prince of Wales and other royal personages. They met in the painting-room of the Convent Garden Theater, and dined upon beefsteaks in the club was in existence more dann 100 years, and became quite noted because of its odd customs. Another strange name was that of the "Scriblerus Club" which Switt founded in 1714, and to which Pope, Gay, and other literary men Subsequently he was again strested on a charge of larceny committed in St. Thomas two years ago.

The fashion of saying "God bless you!" after snezzing, originated with the ancients. These people believed that some langer attended snezzing, so they generally made a short prayer, such as "Jupiter, help me!" It has been found to be the custom among savages to do the same, and Jewish rabbis also make mention of the fact. An old Roman writer says that the custom originated during a plague, when people seemingly in good health snezzed and fell down dead.

Some time ago Julia Patterson, of Toronto, applied for administration of the estate of John Allen, a Colchester township farmer. John Allen, of Chicago, a son of the deceased, disputed the will on the ground that it was not verified. Judge McDougall held that the will would have to be proved. Bagpipes are generally ascribed to Scotsuezzed and fell down dead.

Bagpipes are generally ascribed to Scotland, where they have been in use for a long time, but it was an instrument upon which the ancient Greeks and Romans played. Nero is said have performed on it, and an old piece of Greeian sculpture represents a player on the bagpipes dressed at the fashion that is known to-day as the Highland costume.—[Harper's Young Pecole.

Dougall held that the will would have to be proved.

Jerry Driscoll, a well-to-de farmer of Sandwich East, was instantly killed by the east-bound express on the Michigan Central Railroad late Wednesday night. Driscoll was on his way home from Windsor, and at the crossing when he met his death there is such a dense woods that it is impossible to see a train approaching from the west. He must have been instantly killed, as his body was found on the pilot of the engine. The wagon was wrecked but the horses were not harmed in the least. He lived on a farm three-quarters of a mile from where he met his death.

HURON. Waterton, the Naturalist.

Those who studied Oney's Geography, difty years ago, can doubtless recall the jecture that illustrated the description of Brazil. It depicted a white man riding on the back of a large alligator, which a dozen natives were hauling on shore. The rider was Charles Waterton, a rich young Englishman, who preferred the forests of the Amazon to the comforts of his own land. He had been an ardent fox-hunter, but one day, just before the hunting season began, remorae suddenly seized him for wasting his time in riling after foxes. Immediately he changed his life from that if a sporting English gentleman to that of a naturalist, exploring the Brazilian, torests. HURON.

"The sun exhausted him by day, and the acsquitoes bit him by night, but on went Mr. Charles Waterton," wrote Sydney 3myth. After his return to England he wrote an interesting book, descriptive of whathe had done and sem, and surrounded his wonderful estate, Walton Hall, with a nine-foot wall.

He built the wall of that height, so that for might not jumpon it and thus gain nitrance into the park. It was the owner's beast that only one for had ever got its pads on the coping.

The park was a refuge, where all sorts of cirds and little animals might come and go. Dr. J. B. Martyn, Alvinston, has located in Walkerton.

The shyest of aquatic birds swam in the lake, and the smallest of the feathered tribe made their nest about the naturalist's retreat, as if the golden age had come again within that nine-foot wall. Not a hedge was suffered to be cut within the park, which was two miles in circumference, or else, said the owner, "there would be no berries for the blackbird or the poor man."
