A DEFENSE OF JUDGES

Do the Best They Can and Should Not Be Harshly Criticized-Farmers' Day at the Fair.

Wednesday was Farmers' Day at the great Western Fair, and the buildings containing the live stock were comfortably crowded with the hardy sons of the farm, viewing the different animals and passing comment on the awarding of the prizes. Of course, it is impossible to place the ribbons to please everyone, and I. O. F. HAS NOW exhibitor as well as visitors will, in some cases, probably disagree with the judge. But one must have faith in the has handled the animals and knows every weak point whereas the orition And a Surplus of Over $14,every weak point, whereas the critic only looked on.

Nowhere will this apply more suitably than in the judging of poultry, as no man can pass judgment on poultry without handling them. There are a few complaints here and there, but mostly of a trifling nature. The great trouble generally in the exhibiting of poultry is that a great many breeders do not know their own breed, and feel sore when they are turned down, because the judge hewing close to the standard of perfection In the sheep department there is a

000,000-The Marquee at the Fair.

Following the custom inaugurated by the late Dr. Oronhyatekha — whose memory is still green—the Independent Order of Foresters are again represented close to the entrance of the Main Building with a large marquee, which is handsomely equipped as a reception and rest room. Thousands of members of the order, as well as many friends from all over Western Ontario, have poured in and out ever since Monday morning, registered their names on the visitors' book, shook hands with friends of a year ago, and ahead of Toronto, and the best class extended congratulations to Superintendent of Field Work C.
