BUILDING REDECORATED

Greatness of Church Depends on Presence of God, Says

Pastor.

Talbot Street Baptist Church, which was reopened for services yesterday after being closed for two months for repairs, has been wonderfully improved and is now, so far as the interior decorations and furnishings are concerned, one of the most beautiful churches in the city. A splendid new oak flooring has been put in, new oakended pews installed and the platform provided with new furniture, including a fine oak pulpit. The lighting system also is new and the auditorium now is as light as day when the brilliant clusters are lighted; a new motor gives greater volume and force to the organ, ew carpets cover the aisles, the ceiling has been redecorated and the arrangenent of the pews has been altered to make the front rows converge in a semiircle towards the centre, while the out. side of the building has been repainted.

The church was packed to its utmost capacity at both services, when the "Our Attitude Towards the Pope's Inpastor, Rev. H. H. Bingham, occupied the pulpit. His theme in the morning was "God and the House," and the text was taken from Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the Temple: II. Chronicles, And the house which I build is great, for great is our God above all The speaker directed his attention to two main ideas, the greatness of God a man would interpret the truest longings of his soul, he would find them to New York Cotton Exchange, Chicago Board of Trade, etc.
