Rev. Mr. Grant spoke for the Baptists

Rev. Mr. Grant spoke for the Baptists and against union. His paper was a surprise. His sect could not throw away or abandon what was its most vital tenet, that of immersion, and he thought the differences could never be bridged.

Concluding he said: "I do not see much hope of this union between us at present. Minimize as much as you will the points of difference which at present divide us; those points exist and are full of significance and weighty with importance to all who are troubled with convictions and are what they are from principle. A denomination has no meaning to me unless it exists to protest against error or to emphasize some particular truth or truths. That truth is its life, the only apology it has for its being, and unless that truth shall hold the same prominence in the united church then with the extinction of the denomination the truth for which it existed is put out. That sacrifice can never be made. We must not part with truth. It is not ours to throw away. The surrender of the principle does not help on the union we ardently desire among the people of God.

"There seems to me to be something better for us to do than to join in the general clamor for uniformity or external unity. Our time may be better employed.

better for us to do than to join in the general clamor for uniformity or external unity. Our time may be better employed. The revival of spiritual life is the great thing." He thought the churches should endeavor to unite in producing the common fruits of brotherly kindness and charity.

Provost Body, for the Anglicans, read a long paper mildly favorable to union. He thought there could be a great "confederation" of the churches. To accomplish it each denomination should trace out in its history the epochs when difference arose.

history the epochs when difference arose, cast out schism and get back to the forgotten principles of unity. He believed in the principle of delegation, the historic backbone of the church. The meat of Rev. John Burton's remarks

Rev. Dr. Langtry vindicated the liberality of the Anglicans. He believed in unity, but could never give up the great principle of the historical continuity of the Church of England. He could never recede from belief in apostolic succession and its attendant principles that he had always adhered to. "Many of the brethren have mistaken me for a narrow-minded medieval bigot," he said, but was answered with loud cries of "No, no."

Adolphus Theophilus in Court, despatch from Kansas City states that Adolphus Theophilus Kerr, formerly of this THE SCHOMBERG FURNITURE city, who was extradited from Europe for embezzling the funds of the Jarvis-Conklin Mortgage Trust Company of Kansas City, looked the picture of health when taken from jail to the Criminal Court room yesterday morning. He had just been shaved and might easily have been taken for a successful attorney as he sat within the bar, or for the county marshal, whose best his or for the county marshal, whose berth is reputed to be the fattest in the county. He chatted pleasantly with the attaches of the court for half an hour pending the arrival of his attorneys. When they arrived the case was postponed until March 15.

A Word for Our Schools. Orville T. Bright, M.A., Chicago, Super- 21 Leader-Lane, Toronto intendent of Schools in Cooke County, including all the suburbs of Chicago, who is well-known as one of the leading educators in the United States, and who is the author of several works on "Education," visited the Toronto Public Schools for three days last June. In his annual report, recently issued, Mr. Bright says: "As the result of a recent visit to the Toronto schools I have no hesitation in saying that, as a school system, I have very rarely seen its equal, and have never seen it surpassed."

Six Oils.—The most conclusive testimony, repeatedly laid before the public in the columns of the daily press, proves that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—an absolutely pure combination of six of the finest remedial oils in existence—remedial enter the matic pains, eradicates affections of the throat and lungs, and cures piles, wounds, sores, lameness, tumors, burns and injuries of horses and eatile.
