TO DAY AND TOMORROW.

Don't tell me of to-morrow!

Give me the min who'll say That when a good deed's to be done Let's do the deed to-day. We may all command the present,

If we are and never wait; But rependance is the phantom

Den't tell me of to-morrow! There is much to do to-day That can never be accomplished,

Of the past, that comes too late!

If we throw the hours away. "

Every moment has its duty-Who the future can foretell: Then why put off till to-morrow

What to-day can do so well!

Don't tell me of to-morrow!

If we look upon the past,

who was suffering as he saw how little we gained, cried out—
Pull, lade. Pil double the captain's prizes two bottles of rum and two months pay. Pull lade, for the love of God, pull?

A convulsive effort of the oars told how willing the men were to obey, out the strength of the strong man was gone. One of the poor Tellows washed us twice in re-covering his oar, and then gave out; the other was nearly as far gone. Mr. Larkin of the was nearly as far gone. Mr. Larkin later, and the colonies their the colonies their government of the colonies their the colonies their government intention to withdraw the troops from every pointed:—

Do you see that cake of ice with something black upon it, lads I cried; put me along side of that, and Fil give you a bottle of rum each, to night, and a month's extra wages, when you are paid off.

The men bent to their oars, but their strokes were uneven and leeble. They were used up by the hard duty of the preceding fortnight, and though they did their best, the boat made little more way than the tide.—

This was a long chase—and Mr. Larkin, of the state in the stern sheets.

The senate will not agree to the Wilmot Wilmot of the Wilmot provement in our colonial policy.

They have, after mature deliberation, arrived at the conclusion that justice and expendency alike demand the concession of the state, under direction of the President, and though they did their best, the boat made little more way than the tide.—
