PRESS NOTICES

"Historical, instructive and peculiarly interesting. It is worthy of being enrolled in the list of Canada's Educational works, and of being placed in the hands of our youth, side by side with their histories and geographies."—The Empire.

"An entertaining and instructive volume, by one who has made a special study of Indian character, and of the literature relating to the Ired Men. . . . A valuable contribution to Canadian literature that will be an authority on this interesting subject."—Christian Guardian.

"Describes in an easy and fascinating manner the Indian customs, their camps and wigwams. . . . Dr. McLean's pleasing and instructive style is well known, and the book is an authority on the history, habits and customs of which it treats."—Gulph Mercury.

"There is no lack of variety in the book. . . . While obliged to be concise in his style, he uses such selections from the abundance of incidents at his command as give animation to the picture he presents."—Manitoba Free Press.

"No one who begins to read this book will fail to finish it if possible. It has not a dull page from beginning to end, and many chapters are of thrilling interest."—The Methodist Magazine.

"The book is as entertaining as a story of Mayne Reid's."—The Bookseller.

"The book is written in a clear and animated style, interspersed with remarkable incidents."—Wesley Church Record.

"The book ought to find a ready sale. Its intrinsic worth deserves it, and its Canadian authorship an additional reason."—The Christian Outlook.

"The letter-press and general get-up of the book should secure for the work a place in every library."—Regina Leader.

"Author has gathered the material from first sources. He has given many facts which would otherwise be unknown. . . . It is published by a Canadian firm, but will undoubtedly be sought for by readers throughout the United States."—The American Antiquarian.
