LETTERS OF HANNAH MORE TO ZACHARY MACAULAY ESQUIRE.—Containing notices of Lord Macaulay's youth Edited and arranged by Arthur Roberts, M. A. New York; R. Carter & Bros.: For sale by D. McLellan, Hamilton.

These letters, for the first time published, will be read with especial interest, more particularly since the illustrious person to whom they very frequently refer, has been removed from this earthly scene. Macaulay, in his youth, was a frequent visitor at Barley Wood, the residence of Hannah More and her sisters. Here his genius was discovered and recognized, and brilliant expectations were formed of his future greatness. In most respects the expectations of this true friend of his youth were realized. The early references to the future distinguished historian and orator, will be read with interest, when the letters are on other grounds valuable and worthy of preservation.

SEED TIME AND HARVEST OF RAGGED SCHOOLS, By Thomas Guthrie D. D.—New York: R. Carter, and Bros.—Sold by D. McLellan, Hamilton, and J. C. Geikie Toronto.

The name of Dr. Guthrie, will descend to future generations as one of the most powerful and effective pulpit orators of the 19th century, and as one of the most eminent men connected with the ecclesiastical movements of the age. But his name will descend with a still brighter halo of glory reflected from the ragged schools which he has instituted, and the various benevolent enterprises which he has originated or promoted. In this volume are contained several pleas for ragged schools. In the appendix are various documents which may be read with benefit by such persons as may wish to organize similar institutions in our own cities. This volume is of the same general class with the "Missing Link," and "Haste to the Rescue," and may show the amount of effort that is being at present put forth for the social elevation and improvement of the sunken masses.

DROPS OF TRUTH. EMILY GREY. THE HOLIDAYS. TROTMAN ROGUE. ELLA GRADAM. MARY HUNTER'S HOME JEWELS. Philadelphia: Presbyterian Board of Publication.

We group together the above works which form part of the Board's Series for Youth. They are, like most of the works published by the Board, well written, and beautifully got up, and well adapted for Sabbath Schools, and family reading.
