
Summary

In addition to export training programs, a huge variety of resources exist to provide market research, counselling and financial assistance for small- and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) looking to enter the international marketplace. At local, regional and federal levels, many institutions can assist in doing research, making contacts and helping you on your way. Whether it is courses, computer software or counselling, there is something for everyone.