The Debentures and Debenture Stock of Trading and other Companies, with Forms. By EDWARD MANSON, Barrister-at-law. 2nd edition. London: Butterworth & Co., Temple Bar, Law Publishers. 1910.

New books giving the newest thoughts on subjects affecting the "law merchant" are always welcome; for, as Chief Justice Cockburn says in Goodwin v. Roberts, this branch of the law is not fixed and stereotyped, but is a living law, capable of expansion and enlargement to meet the requirements of trade in the varying circumstances in commerce. Hence the value of such a work as this. A professional man dealing in company law (and which of them does not in these days) needs the assistance and information given in this excellent compendium.
