

Mr. F. MARION CRAWFORD'S NOVELS OF ROMAN SOCIAL LIFE

In decorated cloth covers, each, $1.50

A Roman Singer

"One of the earliest and best works of this famous novelist. . . but a genuine artist could have made so true a picture of human life, by human passions and interwoven with human weakness. It is a specimen of literary art." — The Newark Advertiser.

Marzio's Crucifix

"We have repeatedly had occasion to say that Mr. Crawford possesses an extraordinary degree the art of constructing a story. It is as if it had not have been written otherwise, so naturally does the story unfold and so logical and consistent is the sequence of incident after incident in a story, Marzio's Crucifix is perfectly constructed." — New York Commercial Advertiser.

Heart of Rome. A Tale of the Lost Water

"Mr. Crawford has written a story of absorbing interest, a story of genuine thrill in it; he has drawn his characters with a sure and masterly touch, and he has said many things surpassingly well." — New York Saturday Review.

Cecilia. A Story of Modern Rome

"That F. Marion Crawford is a master of mystery needs no new telling. His latest novel, Cecilia, is as weird as anything he has done since his memorable Mr. Isaacs. . . . A strong, interesting, dramatic story in the picturesque Roman setting beautifully handled as only a master could do it." — Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

Whosoever Shall Offend

"It is a story sustained from beginning to end by an ever increasing dramatic quality." — New York Evening Post.

Pietro Ghisleri

"The imaginative richness, the marvellous ingenuity of plot, the power and subtlety of the portrayal of character, the charm of the romantic element, — the entire atmosphere, indeed, — rank this novel at once as one of the great creations." — The Boston Budget.

To Leeward

"The four characters with whose fortunes this novel deals are, perhaps, the most brilliantly executed portraits in the whole of Mr. Crawford's work. A picture gallery, while for subtle insight into the springs of human passion and for swift dramatic action none of the novels surpasses this one." — News and Courier.
