SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

E. Barrow signed two more players yesterday. This makes the number 9,411 since 1905.

The local bowlers are practicing hard for the big tournament in July, and will make a big strong endeavor to keep some of the crockery at home.

Mandy Clement, a beautiful South Dakota maiden, is a baseball umpire. She has the regular wealth of dark brown hair, a comely figure, drooping lashes, throat like a swan, and pearly teeth. She claims the right to change her mind and the privilege of the last word.

Richard Canfield, in defending his profession, declares that everything in life is a gamble. He is quite right, too. The only trouble is that a few people want to make a cinch game of it.

Possibly we'll get free alcohol with automobiles, but where the horses run they will continue to dispense fusel oil at the regular rate of one drink for the price of two.

The amateur spirit than Hon, President Allen planted in the breasts of the C. L. A. intermediates last season seems to be bearing excellent fruit. Take Aurora, for instance. Herb Lennox's town has a team that boasts one home-brew on its lineup. Newmarket has more than one, but her importations have a majority vote, while Orillia has reached out and gathered in players from all the surrounding towns, including Fergus, from whence comes "Paddy" Romore. These are only three examples. But they serve to show the benefit that comes from the reign of a great and good man. Anybody who would suggest that any of these players traveled so far from home for anything but love of the game should be examined by a doctor.—Telegram. Some up in this country. Tourists are as plentiful as peek-a-boo waists.

Now they are going to brighten cricket! Must intend to play it nights, too, under the calcium glare.

Horsemen everywhere will be sorry to hear of Havers James' accident gesterday at Listowel. James is a smooth driver, and a gentleman. But while you are talking, it is a wonder there are not more accidents with those hobbles, especially when the fields are large.

John Drew and Percy Millman had a merry bowling match last night at the Thistle Club in the singles competition. The pair had it out neck and neck until the last end. Drew was lying two shots, when Millman with his last bowl took them out, lay a shot and won the match 21 to 20. It was a Westervelt and Jack Gillespie won two good games in the Thistle Club tournament last night, and play Sifton and Keith for the championship. Westervelt was in fine form last night, his bowling being exceptionally fine.

The citizens are still talking of Frank Love's great win over John Stevenson last week in the singles competition at the London Rowing Club. One afternoon John had Frank 20 to 14, when the most beautiful shower ever came up, and the game had to be postponed. The next afternoon the pair met, and Frank rolled up seven and beat John out. Some very unfeeling persons have remarked that for luck his worship has Rip Van Winkle clean shaven, but it was good work, nevertheless. He also beat Bert Heaman, and s now well up towards the finals in the singles competition.

Commenting on the cause of his team's slump, Captain Collins had the following to say to a St. Louis man: "The catcher really runs the whole game newadays, and unless a club is fortified behind the bat with a strong, active, good-throwing catcher, the opposing team will run wild on the base lines, and soon break up the game. We have been breaking in some new backstops all season, and it has been quite a handicap on our pitchers. They are compelled to pitch to the catcher instead of to the batter when runners threaten to pilfer bases. This gives the man at the plate a decided advantage over the pitcher. To be more explicit, the pitcher is compelled to ignore the batsman and lay the ball off to one side, so that his catcher can get it clean for a throw."

> Of course, I liked the game of ball As it is played t'day, When the pitcher throws, And th' batter bats. In a scientific way: But it don't make me dance around. And laugh and leap and shout

And over th' fence was out. We used t' go out in th' lot. Where the grass was soft and green. And lay out the prettiest diamond That man has ever seen. And that 't surely win the game,

As it did back when I was a boy

There wasn't any doubt, By either side in th' happy days, When over th' fence was out.

Th' catcher stood there like a man, With nuthin' on but clothes. There wasn't no pillers on his hands, No wires acrost his nose. He wasn't afraid of bein' hit,

With the "shoots" they talk about, Sence th' days when th' pitcher tossed th' ball,

And over th' fence was out.

We used to have flat stuns fer bases: The home plate wus a hole; And the players tried to reach it With all their heart and soul. There wa'n't no skimpy scores then; 'Twas forty or thereabout.

T' twenty-five or thirty, When over th' fence wus out. -Thomas Holmes
