Dear Miss Grey,—I have been trying to get time or take time, to send a you a mite for the prisoners' fund.
Only wish it were larger. I often wonder if, when the war is over, the hurry and rush we are living in will be over and we can come down to a quieter way of living. Do you ever feel that you would like to get out to the backwoods or some quiet spot "far from the maddening crowd," and just sit and think? It seems to me one might come back with renewed zeal for the knitting, sewing, club meetings, church affairs and all the little round of things that makes up one's life. But what's the use of dreaming? I'd better get my sock and get to work. Sincerely yours, JUST A HELPING HAND.
Ans.—Your gift of one dollar is gratefully appreciated. I'm so giad we have been able to continue the support of our two prisoners, for as long as we have—just a year ago this month—besides separate contributions to the general fund for prisoners, and some individual gifts to certain ones
at Christmas time.

I wonder how many of us have not,
as some time or other, felt just as you C. G. Wonders, Too.

at Christmas time.

I wonder how many of us have not, at some time or other, felt just as you describe? Probably in the daily rush we all could give expression from the heart of this little verse quoted one time in the Mail-Box by a reader: I wish't I was a little rock,

A-settin' on a hill,
Doin' nothin' all day long,
But jest a-settin' still.

Now, smile—and get back to your knitting!

A Reliable Method.
Dear Miss Grey—"Sweet Sixteen" asked how to can a chicken.
My method is as follows:
Clean and draw the chicken as for roasting and hang up till the following day. I use only the best pleces, hams, legs, breast, etc. Cut the meat from the bones and pack in thoroughily sterilized pint jars. Pack jars snugly vising salt to taste—but do not over—fill. Put in some of the fat. Add no water, screw on the covera as tightly as possible, using new rubber rings, then loosen a trifle. Put jars in a kettle or boller with hay or cloths on the bottom. Jars should be wrapped and packed closely to prevent them from striking together when the water from the fill with the starting of the string please.

You do not all seem strangers to make time in the Miles of the seem should be wrapped and packed closely to prevent them from striking together when the water of the string lease.

Reading the letters from those whose whose has seems like getting a letter from a friend We like to hear from the mothers of our brave boys, do we not? O, ye mothers, and best for King and country, may heaven richly bless to hear from the mothers of our brave boys, do we not? O, ye mothers, when he had a big fight with my dos, Ranger. Why I could tell it was Jimmy Coon in the dark. For I remember over like, the halles shall not fall.

I wonder if among all our many readers there is another who have weak ankles? I have a wee one just learning to take the same from the string all to taste from the mothers of our many readers to King and country, may heaven richly blessed.

He has a little plece of his left ear torn off. And I saw him does that ittle plece of his left ear torn off. And I saw ham bose that ittle plece of his left ear torn off. And I saw ham the hear torn off left and the whon has a chill what had a big first then loosen a trifle. Put jars in a kettle or boller with hay or cloths on the bottom. Jars should be wrapped and packed closely to prevent them from striking together when the water is boiling. The water should not be quite to the tops of the jars. Cover vessel closely and boil continuously for three or three and a half hours. Add boiling water as needed. When the time is up, take the jars one at a time from the water and screw covers down as tightly as possible. Always keep the water boiling. As the jars cool the tops loosen, so they must be screwed down now and then until cold. The meat that is left may be boiled, cut from the bones and packed in jars with the broth boiled down to half the quantity and poured over. Boil the jars for one hour. This recipe is reliable, and if anyone tries it and fails, it will not be the fault of the recipe. Some wrote of a sailor lad of sixteen who gets few boxes. If I had his address I should boxes. If I had his additionable be glad to send him one.

Yours sincerely,
LA DONNA.

Ans.—Thank you, good friend, La Donna, for the tried and true recipe.

It certainly is principle we want nowadays instead of party. It is true they have stopped making liquor, but if you notice they have the power to start it again when they see fit. I am thinking if they get in power again at this election they will soon be at it again. My opinion is it's only an election dodge. They seem to think more of money than men's lives. Love of money is the root of all evil.
