and the West. Before confederation we were told by the opponents of that measure, that there never could be any business between Ontario and New Brunswick, that our natural market was the United States, and that all our trade should be with that country. This idea was so firmly impressed upon the minds of many, that even at the present day we sometimes hear it put forward seriously as absolute truth. Even so late as a few months ago a well informed gentleman, the recorder of this city, wrote a letter to the "Week," published in Toronto, in which he assumed that there was little or no trade between the maritime provinces and the west. It is unnecessary to say that this was a wholly incor-

We do not remember the time when there was perfect unity between the United States government and its fosterchildren, the Indians. For many years there was continuous trouble with the Seminoles in Florida, and when they were finally crushed and annihilated, differences had to be encountered west of the Mississippi, which almost as often as otherwise resulted disastrously to the whites. Among Europeans and their descendants there are few admirers of Indian character, but Canada has had little difficulty with these sons of the forest, because they have been promptly redressed. After an experience of about three hundred years, the United States should recognize the fact that the Indian will always be an Indian, and the traits which he has inherited for thousands of years, while they may be modified by civilization can never be wholly obliterated. Therefore the effort which the United States government is making to induce the Indians to take up separate farm allotments, abandon the tribal system, and surrender their re-

Fagged Out "Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Begolæ, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. PHERE MOSHER, 90 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

But to make good citizens of the Indians is not the object of this movement; their lands are wanted for settlement, and in one way or another they will be secured. Canada has done better by its Indians, and these people have shown their appreciation of its paternal treatment in endowing them with the franchise and preserving for them their tribal system and their reservations.

THE NEW QUEEN'S PRINTER.

Water Blackburn Harte, who served a long apprenticeship on the press of this country, will contribute an article, "The Journals and Journalists of Canada" to the New England Magazine for December which will contain portraits of many of the men who have made, and are making, their mark in Canadian journalism. There will be no politics in the article, and Conservatives, Liberals and Independents alike should read it. It is the first time in the history of American.

Robert A. Murdock, commercial traveller for Murdock's nephews, of Halifax, who, while in delirum tremens, a ttacked John Wilde, jr., of Newark, N. J., an invalid and fellow boarder, at the Halifax hotel on Sunday, attempted to commit suicide last night at the general hospital. He had a jackknife in his pocket and with this he made quite a bad gash in his throat. He was detected, however, before he had time to repeat the operation and his design was frustrated. He will likely recover. Murdock belongs to

Three or four hundred years ago some men who had become distinguished in the world of letters, were fortunate of unfortunate enough to be taken under the patronage of some titled personage to whom they were expected to play the sycophant, but it is only during more recent years that men who have rendered the state service with their pens have been given positions under government, which while they involved various duties

Independent at the history of American periodical literature that an attempt has been made to give an adequate account of Canadian journalism. Mr. Harte is admitted even by those who disapprove of his attitude in politics to be at least, a perfectly candid writer, and in this article merely the abilities of the journalists treated of have been considered; friends and opponents have been judged as men, and from a literary standpoint only, withful the least reference to their political affiliations. The leading French Canadians journalists are included with their English confreres and the article in the history of American periodical literature that an attempt has been made to give an adequate account of Chatham, N. A package of native wild strawberries picked on Saturday, Oct. 10, by section foreman, Thomas King, a few miles east of Painsec, has been laid on our table. They are ripe and well flavored. If some would make a record of events of this class for a century or so it might be found that the north pole was moving farther north or the gulf stream bringing us larger instalments of summer year by year, encouraging the hope that in a few hundred years we shall have a Floridac limeter to wait the interior and the personage of native wild stream periodical literature that an attempt has been made to give an adequate account of Chatham, N. A WORD TO FATHERS.

It may be that some fathers who read our proposition will be so engrossed is business that they will not give the matter that consideration it deserves. Don think that because you have managed to get along without a good Cyclopædia so for that your wives and children will have nouse for one. That would be a great mittake for you to make. While you may not have the desire nor time for reading yet they may have, and nothing would afford them more pleasure than to have good Cyclopædia, such as the Encyclopædia Britannica, Revised and Amended, a hand for consultation on all imaginable subjects. It you can't appreciate a goothing, find out if they would like it. If so, order it without delay and thus add to your own happiness.

RUBBER SHEETING

Mothers should see to it that their husbands' attention is called to the great proposition of the THE EVENING GAZETTE, and impress upon them the importance of a good Cylopedia in the home and have them order at once. This proposition will not last always, and if you do not remind them of it every morning they may neglect it until it is too late, and your children will be forced to do without, while your neighbors will have one, and it will always be a source of regret that you did not make your husband get a set for your children.
