

Annual Report of the Melville Church Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor.

In presenting this our third annual report, we have to look back over a year, during which we hope a good deal of quiet work has been done in our midst, "For Christ and the Church."

Our roll shows at the close of this year, 33 active, and 11 associate members.

The weekly prayer meetings have been well attended during the year. Two union prayer meetings have been held with the Cote St. Antoine Methodist C. E. Society, both of which we trust, were stimulating and helpful to both societies.

The Charitable Committee has given assistance to several parties who were in need of help and sympathy, and has also provided clothing for a pupil in the Mackay Institute.

The Missionary Committee has carried on the regular weekly collections for Foreign Missions, and has also adopted a similar system for Home Missions, which in all amounted to $51.95.

During the year this committee has also collected numbers of Sunday School, Missionary, and Illustrated Papers and Magazines, and distributed them to different mission fields.

The work of the Flower Committee is noticeable to all, the pulpit has been supplied with flowers every Sabbath. Flowers have also been sent, not only to the sick among the members of the Society and Church, but also to the sick in the hospital.

The other committees have attended faithfully to their several duties as occasions demanded.

Our Society's delegation to the New York convention was notably large, no less than 15 members having attended that wonderful gathering last July, these members gave full reports of the work of that convention to the Society, on their return.

One of the most pleasant features we have to record, is the fact, that five of our young people have left the associate membership ranks, have joined the Church, and have thus come out on the Master's side.
