
Recollections

O God, why should these childhood days
Be all so clear and bright,
So full of hope, so very real—
A world of dawning light!
While Age goes trembling to the grave
More troubled still in soul,
As though unconscious the approach
To Heaven's Blessèd Goal.

