✻ He had noticed the change in the street car cable method from the former cumbersome and dangerous overhead trolley wires. The car motors now received their power from the electric wire laid in a trench between and beneath the rails, the contact being made by means of the trolley fixed to the bottom of the car and running in a continuous slot; he had marvelled at the multitudinous means of transportation—including subway-railroads, surface railroads, automobiles, long-distance aeroplanes, carriages and cabs.

To enumerate all Fleming saw, heard and read about would tire the incredible reader. Let it be suffi-
