"What's he got to do with me or my mother?" growled Dick. "I'll go home when I get good an' ready, an' not before."

"An' it's time for you to go home now!" exclaimed the proprietor of the place, elbowing his way to the front of the group, and addressing Theo. "We don't want none o' your sort around here. Now clear out—d'ye hear?"

Seeing that it was useless to stay longer, Theo departed, followed by taunting cries and yells from all in the room.

He went gloomily homeward, telling himself that he had been a fool to try to do anything for Dick Hunt. Dick was "no good anyhow." But, as he passed her door, Mrs. Hunt opened it and peered anxiously out. Her eyes were red and swollen, and she turned back with a disappointed air as she saw Theo. The next moment, however, she stepped out into the hall, pushing the door to behind her.

"Tode," she whispered, "do you know where my Dick is?"

The boy answered reluctantly, "He's down at Todd's."

Mrs. Hunt put her apron to her eyes and sobbed softly. "Oh, dear," she moaned, "his father's gone to look for him, an' if he finds him there he'll most kill him—he's that mad with the boy for the way he's been goin' on lately."

Theo stood silent, not knowing what to say, and then Mrs. Hunt turned back into the room while he went up another flight to his. He had just reached his own door when he heard loud, angry voices, accompanied by scuffling sounds, on the stairs below, and he knew that Mr. Hunt had found Dick and was bringing him home.

WHAT HE REALLY WANTED.

The candidate, after tiring his audience, wound up as follows: "I want housing reform; I want land reform; I want education reform; I want —"

"Yes," shouted a bored voice from the audience, "you want chloroform."

PRICKLY.

Betty had been to her first party, and had drunk long and deep of "fizzy" lemonade. When she got home her mother asked her what she had had to eat. She gave a faithful account.

"And what to drink?" her mother asked.

"It was very nice stuff," said Betty, "but I don't know what it was."

"What did it taste like?" asked mother, interested.

"Well," said Betty, "it tasted just like when your foot's gone to sleep."

A COLD BLOW.

The minister went to visit a poor woman in Scotland who had just lost her husband. He tried to speak consolingly to her by pointing out that the deceased was in a much happier state.

"Just think, my good woman," said the worthy divine, "your dear husband is perhaps at this moment playing a harp."

"Na, na," interrupted the sobbing widow, "mickle guid, that'll dae his rheumatisms, sittin' on a cauld cloud blawin' a trumpet."

Wife (returning from overnight visit)—"Did you get yourself a good dinner last evening, dear?"

Hub—"Yes, there was a bit of steak in the ice box and I cooked it with a few onions I found in the cellar."

Wife—"Onions? Jack, you've eaten my bulbs!"
