Silver Glitter of the Sardines. The decline of the sardine packing duce the world's available beauty. A rdine factory is not a particularly beautiful object, but a sardine boat certainly is, and to see the sardine fleet coming in the brave little port of Le Croisic over the tumbling waters of the bay was a sheer delight. Hardly less beautiful are the boats in port when the fine sardine nets, of an almost ethereal blue, flutter from the masts to dry. And a boat metal, the number of spectacles and eye-glass frames and mountings made of this material has shown a very large yearly increase. Considering the importance of gold-filled wire and the many uses to which it is put, it seems surprising that so little is really known of this and how nearly equal to solid gold it is for many uses. The ferm gold filled is somewhat misleading! merely reversing it almost thoroughly explains both the material and the process.

Filled gold, as it might well be called, consists of a gold shell filled with an alloy of base metal. The popularity of gold filled is demonstrated by the fact that nearly $1,000,000 of fine gold is used annually in one plant alone, and half of this is used in the manufacture of the gold-filled wire from which spectacle and eye-glass frames and mountings and both the manufacture of the gold-filled wire from which spectacle and eye-glass frames and mountings and believed the land in each of three dealth in each of the land in each of three land in each of three within one blant alone, and half of this is used in the manufacture of the gold-filled wire from which spectacle and eye-glass frames and mountings and both the manufacture of the gold-filled wire from which spectacle and eye-glass frames and mountings are made. strated by the fact that nearly $1,-000,000 of fine gold is used annually in one plant alone, and half of this is used in the manufacture of the gold-filled wire from which spectacle and eye-glass frames and mountings
