Letters to Berlin Papers Tel: How Chinese Were Slaughtered.

Berlin, Nov. 9 .- Letters from German soldiers in China continue to find their way into the press. The Hanover Courier, National Liberal, prints a letter from Pekin describing the operations of the battalion to which he writer belongs, and mentioning a case where three hundred to four hundred Chinese were "partly killed and partly executed later by shooting." The writer adds:

"All Boxers who are caught in Pe-kin are shot. Each one must dig a hole and kneel behind it, so as to fall hole and kneel behind it, so as to faul directly into it when shot.

"The city of Liang-Chang-Chung was captured Tuesday. Our company halted before one of the gates, and the Chinese, who were driven from the other side through the gate, per-ished upon our bayonets. It was hor-rible. We have men in our company who have already shot ten China-men."

The Courier observes:
"Such statements as this make an official explanation regarding the manner of carrying on the war more urgent than ever.

The Freisinnige Zeitung says:

"The persistent silence in official quarters unfortunately justifies the conclusion that such a description of the conduct of the German troops is true. The government will be com-pelled to express itself in the reichs-tag."

Body of a M in Left by His Marderer to the Pigs.

Murder Case is the Fensation of all the State of Indiana.

Whiteland, Ind., Nov. 9. - When the body of Milton Knapp was found partially devoured by hogs, in the barn lot of the Herbert farm, near here, it was generally thought he was, a victim of heart, disease, But the whole community was shocked to earn through the confession of the murderer that Knapp was killed by his brother-in-law, William Pherson, whose lands join the Herbert farm, of which Knapp is the owner.

The crime was committed Thursday afternoon, according to Pherson's conession, and was the result of an old enmity. Four years ago, he says, he was anonamously informed that Knapp was paying attention to his 14-year-old daughter. Both Knapp and the girl denied the story and Pherson decided to drop the matter rather than cause a scandal. Ever since he

The man proved to be Knapp, and his discovery, Pherson claims, was followed by an attack on the latter with a drawn knife. Striking the skulker with his heavy cane, the fellow tumbled unconsciously over the fence into the hog lot, while Pherson left the scene without learning the

The story is lame is some particulars but circumstances point to a discovery of guilty action on the part of Knapp that may mitigate the crime!

Pherson is under arrest. He is 61 years old, while Knapp was 66. Both are veterans of the civil war.

A JAPANESE INTERVIEW

The Reporter Is Polite, but Is an In-

"Before I went to Japan," said a prominent western railroad official who has recently returned from a visit to the mikado's kingdom, "I used to think that our American reporters were the most inquis-itive class of men in the world, but this idea was very soon dispelled from my mind when I arrived in Tokyo. Four in terviewers for the vernacular press called upon me before I had been five hours ed upon me before I had been five hours on Japanese soil, and when I succumbed, after vainly pleading privilege, it was to find that the alert mirded Japs had simply taken the American system of interviewing and reduced it to its simplest terms, not to say ad absurdum. With them interviewing is business from the start, like pulling a tooth or boring a hole. They waste no time over pleasant introductory remarks about the weather or your voyage.

"The operation is as follows: You receive a card bearing a series of cabalistic marks, and, uncertain whether your visitor is a minister of state or a guide in marks, and, uncertain whether your visitor is a minister of state or a guide in want of a job, you go down stairs and discover a dapper little gentleman, in appearance about 19, dressed in faultless foreign fashion—tennis shoes, flannel trousers, white vest, blue coat, flowing necktie, spectacles and pith helmet—and speaking English with the accuracy and impressiveness of a copybook. impressiveness of a copybook.

'Good morning. Are you Mr. Blank? "'Good morning. I am." "Well, I am the reporter of the so-and-so newspaper of Tokyo, Will you permit me to interview you?"

"'With pleasure." "The interviewer then takes a seat produces a notebook and pencil and be gins with the directness of a census tak er: 'How old are you, and where were you born?' And when you tell him that you were born of poor but respectable parents in the year 1, let us say, he gravely commits the unfamiliar phrase to paper. "How long will you stay? How long since you started? Where have you been? What is the circulation of your paper? How do you like Japan? What do they? think of Japan in America?' These are a few of the questions that are pressed upon one with the relentless persistence of a pile driver.

"At last, when you have been compe led to draw liberally upon your imagina-tion for your facts and the notebook of the enemy of traveling mankind is full, you suppose that the interview is over. But nothing could be further from the interviewer's idea, for he settles himself in his chair, resharpens his pencil, pro-duces a new notebook and asks, 'If anything of interest has ever befallen you upon your travels at home or abroad, please give me full information new.' "The interview over, the Japanese reporter takes his departure and never seems to realize that to cross question seems to realize that to cross question a solitary and ill informed individual upon the policies of all nations and the details of his own obscure life is really a huge joke. Next day you receive a copy of the so-and-so newspaper containing the interview with 'top' solemnly written on one side of it, so that you may know which is the right way upward."

A Sherlock Holmes In Utah. A Sherlock Holmes in Utah, where the fictitious Sherlock Holmes displayed some part of his wonderful detective ability, has produced in real life the prototype of Conan Doyle's great character. A few days ago a drug store in Salt Lake was entered at night and robbed. In addition to tapping the till the bur-glar stole a dozen bottles of hair restorer, several bottles of Florida water and a large bottle of violet perfume.

The list of articles stolen was given to a member of the staff of detectives. Other information was meager. No one was suspected, and, contrary to the usual custom in such cases made and provided, the detective announced that he had no clew. He did this because he is a real Sherlock Holmes. For he had what other lesser sleuths would call a clew. This wise young man reasoned that the burglar was baldheaded, else why steal hair restorer; that he liked the odor of Florida water and that he had a sweetheart ida water and that he had a sweetheart with a fondness for the persume of vio-lets. Having made this mental picture of the malefactor, he started out in search

At latest reports the burglar was still at large. The detective nosed his way all over the city, but was unable to de-tect an odor of Florida water exuded by a baldheaded man accompanied by a girl perfumed with violet. Hopes are entertained of the detective's success, however, as an extravaganza, with bal let, is to be played there shortly, and it is believed the guilty wretch will surely be taken in an orchestra chair.

Presence of Mind. Dr. Siddale, the well known Lon-don physician, during his vacation a few years ago was fishing one evening in Scotch loch when a man approached, caught him by the shoulders and shook him violently. A glance told the doctor that the man was insane. He was a huge fellow; the doctor was small and possessed of little physical strength. No one was in sight. "What are you going to do?" asked the doctor calmly. "Throw you into that water!" shouted the man. "Certainly," said the doctor; "but I'll have to go home and put on a dress suit. Dead men always wear evening dress."

The madman stopped, looked at him doubtfully and said: "So they do. Make haste. I'll wait."

Dr. Siddale walked slowly up the bank and then ran for his life. It required calmness and courage of a rare quality to cope with the vagaries of a disordered

Germany.

Pretoria, Nov. 9. - Surrendered burghers assert that Mr. Steyn, after a council of war with Gen. Botha and Gen. Delarey, addressed the burghers with great passion, urging them to continue the war. He said he was going south and hoped to return with 5,000 men, assuring them that he knew that Germany had delivered an ultimatum to Great Britain demanding the retrocession of the republic.
